Ugly News From Spain
Japan Sees Niagara
Silver Worries Borah
Look Out for Your Heart

By Arthur Brisbane

ASSOCIATED PRESS dispatches from Madrid indicate that the revolution in Spain is to some extent like the recent revolution in Mexico, an outbreak against the church.

Mobs continued yesterday their attacks on Catholic institutions. Ten Catholic centers in Madrid were burned. Jesuit headquarters were first destroyed and then a church adjoining the headquarters. Two hundred priests were forced to flee for safety from the Jesuit headquarters.

The mob, said to have been stimulated by Communistic urging, next destroyed the Carmelite monastery. In all these attacks gasoline was used to start destructive fires. All the monks escaped from the Carmelite monastery.

The Jesuit seminary in the center of Madrid, a college for priests, was likewise destroyed, according to Associated Press reports, and a Jesuit school, used as a residence for priests, in one of the suburbs, was next burned.

The first attack on the Jesuit headquarters was made by a body of working men, and when flames had started, firemen refused to put them out.

The extraordinarily savage character of the attack is indicated in the Associated Press report that, while the church next to Jesuit headquarters was burning, the mob threw stones, and "their target was the great cross over the main entrance to the church, and whenever a missile struck it, the crowd cheered hysterically."

The royal party from Japan, having seen Niagara Falls, is disappointed. So is everybody who sees Niagara Falls for the first time. A grasshopper couldn't possibly appreciate a Zeppelin in the sky, human microbes at the edge of the falls can't appreciate the grandeur of a great river rushing down over a high precipice.

Senator Borah, who observes as you do, that the low price of silver has cut in two the purchasing power of 800,000,000 human beings, half the world's population, says something should be done for silver. As far as purchases from us are concerned, silver's drop has not cut the purchasing power of Asia and other countries in half. It has cut down purchases 90 per cent.

The first half of their spending power men need for absolute necessities, food, lodging. The second half buys luxuries and machinery.

The low price of silver, in addition to halving the purchasing power of 800,000,000 people, has doubled the national debt of the silver-using nations. They must pay in gold, and need twice as much silver to do that.

Something should be done for silver, and probably MUST be done before prosperity really comes back. A metal that has been "good money" all over the world for 5000 years cannot suddenly be thrown into the discard without economic suffering. The question is, WHAT can you do for silver and HOW can you do it?

The death of Walter A. Strong, only 47 years old, is a loss to good newspaper work, and a warning that the heart grows old, although the body may seem young.

Mr. Strong, an athlete since his early youth, continued his athletic exercises in addition to the heavy load put upon him as owner of the Chicago News.

He played a game of golf on Sunday, and died of heart disease on his return from the links.

Violent exercise weakens the heart, and there is only so much vitality in each man. If he uses it in one way he cannot use it in another. The deaths of many prominent athletes from heart disease, before 50, should be a warning.

Cyrus H. K. Curtis, not personally "wet" and an excellent citizen, says editorially that this country to end crime doesn't need more laws, it needs to get rid of one law—prohibition.

Emphatically Mr. Curtis says "prohibition finances crime."

That, unfortunately, is the fact, at least bootlegging finances crime and on a scale that runs not into millions, but BILLIONS of dollars every year.

The idea that bootlegging can be ended while prohibition endures is, of course, childish.

President Hoover plans to cut $345,000,000 from government cost. This would reduce considerably the billion deficit now faced.

It is said by "experts" that the size of the army cannot be reduced; 118,000, now on the payroll, being "the lowest number consistent with safety."

The country used to get along with 40,000 men in the regular army. Have the people become more dangerous or rebellious? What is it that makes 118,000 men necessary, in this age of

SECRET NOTE MAY SOLVE 'PEN' PLOT

District Attorney Bishop Says the Message to Him Held "Valuable Information"

An anonymous letter to Dist. Atty. Warren L. Bishop of Middlesex County supplied valuable information, which the investigating authorities announced today might lead to quick solution of the Harvard "poison pen" mystery.

The message, according to Bishop, contained clues which round out information gathered by State Detectives Edward Sherlock and Edward O'Neil.

Believing that it might lead directly to the detection and arrest of the guilty persons, the district attorney turned the information over to the two investigators, who hurried from the courthouse to check on it and act, if warranted.

MYSTERY NOTE SECRET

While this investigation is going on Harvard students were preparing to voice their protests against the activities of the poison pen writers at a mass meeting in Emerson Hall in the Harvard yard this evening.

Dist. Atty. Bishop declined to reveal the contents of the mysterious letter until a check was made, and he refused to say if the letter directly named the poison pen writers or whether one of the plotters had "squealed."

"I can only say now that I regard the letter as highly important, providing valuable leads," he said. The letter was typewritten.

A member of the Harvard faculty, suspected of the plot against Timothy A. Tarcaousio, law school instructor and former Russian air

MARY JONES' 'PET RANCH' IS RAIDED

Officers Seize Aged Woman Doctor's Cats and Dogs in 14-Room House

Board of health officers today invaded the South End home of Dr. Mary E. Jones, 75, descendant of an old Revolutionary family, and liberated a score of dogs and cats, the woman physician's only companions in her 14-room house at 8 James st.

A search warrant was issued after neighbors had protested to health authorities against conditions in Dr. Jones' home.

Dr. Jones was absent when the officers sought to serve the warrant, and entrance was effected by breaking through windows.

SOME OUT FIRST TIME.

Nine dogs and a dozen cats, never before permitted to leave the confines of the huge house, were turned over to attendants of the Animal Rescue League. Many of the aged recluse's pets were born in the house, and saw the outdoors for the first time when they were taken to the waiting ambulance of the rescue league.

The officers were handicapped in their pursuit of the animals through the house by the litter of antique furniture and debris which fills the rooms. Many of the cats took refuge in the maze of furniture and refused to emerge.

After the pets were taken to the headquarters of the rescue league, the health officials posted a guard

Boston Car in Crash; Girl Dies

A Lebanon (N. H.) girl driver was killed, a girl companion was injured and a moving picture salesman of Boston escaped injury early today when their automobile skidded off the road in Lebanon, crashed into a tree and capsized.

The girl killed was Miss Doris Thrasher, 23, of West Lebanon, employed in Lebanon as a waitress.

Miss Gertrude Leonard, 23, residing in the front seat with Miss Thrasher, suffered a broken leg, possible internal injuries and severe cuts and bruises.

The man who escaped injury was Irving Shippman of Mission st., Roxbury, who was riding in the rear seat of the car, which is registered in the name of his wife, Mrs. Mary H. Shippman, of the same address.

All three occupants of the machine were rushed to a hospital at Hanover, N. H., where Miss Thrasher was pronounced dead on arrival.

Jeering Throngs Defy Troops in Their Efforts to Restore Order in the Country

Madrid, May 12 (AP)—Jeering, cheering mobs which swept police, civil guards and soldiers aside, attacked and burned churches and church buildings in Spanish cities today as the month-old republican government strove with all its resources to restore order.

Five churches and convents were burned before dawn in Seville. Martial law was proclaimed and troops were placed on the streets in an effort to control the throngs which ranged the city, destroying monuments which marked the centuries of Roman Catholicism in Spain.

More disorders were reported from other places. In Malaga two churches and church buildings were burned during the night. At Cadiz four churches were burned and at Alicante four churches and convents were partly destroyed by fire and looted.

CHURCHES ARE BURNED

Mobs at Zaragoza, Cordoba and Bilbao attacked and wrecked church buildings in those cities, but did not burn them.

With cavalry, infantry, tanks and machine gun squads patrolling the streets of Madrid the capital was restored to tranquility during the night, but not before ten churches, convents, monasteries and other ecclesiastical buildings had been burned to the ground while the mobs held off firemen and prevented their fighting the flames.

While the tension has eased in the capital, President Alcala Zamora said the government was prepared to use all the force it commands to restore and preserve order.

"We intend to pursue a firm policy," he said. "We will see that our orders are enforced throughout Spain. We will protect life and property and we will impose the severest punishment on all those who are found guilty of fomenting these disturbances, be they monarchists, communists or whoever they be."

SHAMED FATHER GULPS POISON

Sorrow over indictment of his son in the murder of James M. Kiley, Somerville filling station proprietor, caused John S. Garrick, 52, of Boston, to attempt suicide by drinking poison in Brookline today, according to police.

The attempt took place in front of the home of his daughter, Mrs. Harold Breaker, Abington rd., Brookline, shortly after a visit to the son, James T. Garrick, in East Cambridge jail.

Breaker administered first aid and then rushed his father-in-law to St. Elizabeth's Hospital, where his condition was regarded as serious.

The younger Garrick, with Edward Consalvi of Ibbetson st., Somerville, was indicted last week for the shooting of Kiley in his filling station on the Northern Artery last March.

Ysaye, Violin King, Dies at 72

Brussels, May 12 (AP)—Eugene Ysaye, who broke most of the traditions of the violin before he became one of the world's great masters of that instrument, died today after a long illness. He would have been 73 years old July 16.

Death came two months after one of the greatest triumphs of his career as a musician, the production at Liege in March of his opera, "Peter the Miner," written in Walloon dialect. Ysaye was unable to be present, but Queen Elizabeth, who attended, arranged a radio broadcast so that the composer could hear his opera from his bed.

As early as the middle of 1928 Ysaye was suffering from diabetes and phlebitis, and a year later had to have his right leg amputated. Late in 1930 he became ill again. At the time of the presentation of his opera he was thought to be on the road to recovery.

Ysaye was married twice. His first wife died in 1924. His second wife was an American girl, 44 years his junior, Miss Annette Dincin, daughter of Dr. Hermen Dincin of Brooklyn.

Ysaye was known for the originality of his playing and sometimes was called a musical colorist. He terminated his engagement as conductor of the Cincinnati Symphony Orchestra in 1919 after dissension had arisen among the members at alleged favoritism to certain musicians.

5-TON GIRDER FALLS; 2 HURT

A five-ton steel sye-beam, 22 feet long, fell 100 feet in Watertown today, injuring two workmen on the fifth floor and narrowly missing three others.

The accident occurred at the telephone building under construction at Mt. Auburn and Arlington sts. The beam has just been hoisted from a truck to the fifth story, when a guy wire snapped.

In falling the beam struck a board projecting over the edge of the fifth floor and knocked the other end of the board against Frank Gallagher and Edward Rush. They were cut and bruised and had to be aided to the street for treatment, after which they were taken home.

Warned by the shout of William E. Barnes, 57, of Golden Hill st., Saugus, three other workmen, who were standing directly under the falling beam, jumped to safety.

It crashed into the cab of the truck from which it had been hoisted, and cut through to the ground. Barnes, driver of the truck, had been sitting in the cab up to about 10 minutes before.

POWER TRUST HOLDS GRIP ON N. HAMPSHIRE

Outsiders Own $56,000,000 of Total $67,000,000 in Utilities Properties

By JOHN T. LAMBERT

Concord, N. H., May 12—New Hampshire's electric and power industry, including the most profitable and famous plants, have fallen into the grip of three influential units of the so-called Power Trust, 42 of them operated with financial headquarters outside of this Commonwealth.

Such is the striking disclosure of a survey completed today in behalf of Chairman Mayland H. Morse and the New Hampshire Public Service Commission.

The investigation was made for the state officials by Samuel H. Mildram, the Boston consulting engineer and accountant.

His report will show that the three great power groups which have gained control and to which the consumer in New Hampshire pay the bills are as follows:

The Insull of Chicago.

WORTH $30,000,000

They operate the New Hampshire Power Company, with eight branches in the Newport and Hillsboro sections of the state; the Twin States Gas and Electric Company, with principal plants at Dover and Berlin; the Central Vermont Public Service Corporation, headquartered at Claremont, and the Public Service Company of New Hampshire, which dominates such key industrial cities as Manchester and Nashua.

In the less than ten years since they first began their adventure here, the Chicago magnates have acquired plants whose book value are in excess of $30,000,000, or more than half the book value of all the lighting properties in New Hampshire.

The New England Power Co.

This company has secured control over the Grafton County Electric Light and Power Co., operating in the Dartmouth College section, and the Salem Electric Light Co., in Rockingham County, while it has established the Bellows Falls Hydro-Electric Corp., with a book value fixed at nearly $18,000,000 by Mildram, not to mention the $31,000,000 power dam at Monroe and the 75-mile transmission line running through the state to the great generating and distributing plant at Tewksbury, Mass.

MAY GET TENNEY HOLDINGS

If it takes over the Charles H. Tenney interests, as is reported purpose, it will also acquire substantial minority interests in the independent Concord Electric Electric Co., located in this city, and the Exeter and Hampton Electric Co., as well as a number of smaller companies now operated in Massachusetts by the Tenneys.

The Associated Gas and Electric Co.

With headquarters on Broadway, New York, and operating in nineteen states and several maritime provinces, this huge organization has taken over the New Hampshire Gas and Electric Company at Portsmouth and the Derry Electric Company, and it went into the courts in defiance of the Commission's attempt to complete an exhaustive investigation of its financial structure.

How completely these three organizations dominate the Granite State's lighting and power field is indicated by this summary in the Mildram report: Of the $61,000,000 book value of all the operating plants in this State, they hold about $53,000,000.

A fourth formidable figure in the New Hampshire field is Arthur S. Dewing, the Harvard College professor, who acquired the so-called Dewing lighting properties and is now informally understood by the Commission to have transferred or sold them to the Electric Bond and Share Company of New York, the Colossus of the power world and central figure of the so-called Power Trust.

PEOPLE HAVE LOST

"Unquestionably," said Chairman Morse, "the people of New Hampshire have lost control of their lighting utilities to outside financial interests."

Under authority of a progressive public utility law adopted by the Legislature last week Chairman Morse and the commission will begin at once an exhaustive study of the rates charged the people and which "on their face" demand a complete investigation. This law provides that the corporations investigated, not the public, will be assessed the cost of these probes.

The commission is now completing a report on the investigation it made of the Associated Gas and Electric Company, which contested its rights and balled the Commission into the courts.

These findings will show, it is said, that the "brains" of the Associated is H. C. Hopson of 64 Broadway, New York. This organization, it is said, was found to have been collecting profits through separate management, engineering and accounting corporations, one of them owned by Hopson, and an advertising concern controlled by his brother-in-law.

EX-CONVICT IS KILLED OUTSIDE A NIGHT CLUB

Brilliant Student Studied Law in Prison to Win Release; Mother Collapses

New York, May 12—Roy Herbert Sloane, whose brilliance as a scholar when he was a boy prodigy at Carnegie Tech and Columbia University seemed to presage a successful career, was mysteriously shot to death today as he was entering or leaving the Mad Dot Club, an alleged speakeasy.

Sloane, 26 years old, with a Sing Sing record behind him, was slain from ambush. Several men in a parked automobile riddled him with bullets and sped away. He was unconscious when a policeman picked him up in the street and rushed him to the hospital, where he died an hour later.

MOTHER COLLAPSES

At the very moment his career was being brought to such a tawdry end, his mother, Mrs. Anna Rogerman Sloane, B. A. M. him when he didn't come home Institute of Arts and Crafts, an authority on East India and a writer of educational books, was looking for him and praying for his safety.

He had not been home last night and she was worried. When she learned he had been slain she collapsed.

Sloane was first identified from papers in his pocket as "John McDermott." Later, it was determined by means of finger prints that the victim was really Sloane, the former "boy lawyer" of Sing Sing.

Sloane, it was recalled, staged a spectacular defense of himself and won his freedom from prison a year ago through his knowledge of legal procedure. He had been sentenced to ten years in prison in 1926 for the theft of an automobile in Mount Vernon, but, after obtaining 11 hearings for himself on habeas corpus proceedings, effected his release.

WORKING AS DETECTIVE

His mother said that of late he had been doing detective work on "investigating." He was "getting witnesses" in a case, she said.

"He was working on a case; an appeal for a man he met in Sing Sing named 'McDermott,'" said Mrs. Sloane, "and afraid something might have happened to him when he didn't come home last night, and I was praying for him."

The owner of the Mad Dot Boat Club, a Mrs. Nichols, whose wife, Mary, and his sister, Mrs. Dolly Drusso, were seated at an apartment in Riverside Drive and taken to a police station for questioning, Dulcia Nichols said, was in the Mad Dot Club when he left there about 4 o'clock this morning.

TELLS OF SHOOTING

The police were inclined to the theory that either underworld enemies had followed Sloane to the place or that the three youths with him were in his company for the purpose of "putting him on the spot."

A taxicab chauffeur told the authorities that when the shooting occurred he was in a parked machine near the Mad Dot and that, a few seconds after the shooting began, the gunmen's sedan sped away.

WILKINS SUB IN DIVING TESTS TODAY

Nautilus to Descend 50 Feet in Experiments Off New London Base

Copyright, 1931, by King Features Syndicate, Inc.

New London, Conn., May 12—The transarctic submarine Nautilus was moored at the United States submarine base here, preparing for her first salt water dive later today.

The Nautilus batteries are being charged and her air tanks filled with compressed air in preparation for the test.

When the boat dives she will carry Captain Danenhower and a full crew who are greatly pleased that they are soon to embark on their voyage toward the North Pole.

Following today's submersion, the craft will proceed to Long Island Sound for two more dives, one of which will be to a depth of 200 feet. For these tests the Nautilus will be accompanied by the United States submarine tender Falcon, in command of Lieut. G. F. J. LaBelle.

The Falcon is specially equipped for submarine salvage and rescue work. By means of machinery aboard the Falcon, a submarine in difficulties below the water could probably be brought to the surface.

For this purpose the Falcon carries high compression air apparatus. Even should a hole be torn in the hull of the Nautilus, the Falcon would be able to make her buoyant. This would be done by partially filling the flooded compartment with compressed air. The Falcon also has means of communicating with men trapped in a submarine.

GIRLS STAND BY HARVARD MAN

service captain, has been questioned and exonerated, the Boston Evening American learned.

PROTEST MEETING TONIGHT

This inquiry was conducted in secret by Harvard authorities, the "judges" being law school professors. Three girls, mentioned in the poison pen letters, were questioned.

Tonight's protest meeting will be held under the auspices of the Harvard Liberal and Socialist clubs. Resolutions defending the character of Tarascuzio and denouncing the writer of the poison pen letters will be submitted to the gathering by Alden R. Whitman, '34, president of the Liberal Club, who will preside.

Dr. John Dewey of Columbia University, lecturer at Harvard for the last six months, will be the principal speaker. He stated yesterday it was the unanimous opinion at the university that Tarascuzio would be exonerated.

William Stix, '32, former president of the Harvard Liberal Club, will also be among the speakers.

RIFT WITH TEACHER

It was learned that Tarascuzio himself directed the attention of the investigating board to his faculty brother by filing a report with Dean Calvert Magruder in which he clearly stated his suspicions.

Chief among the motives which might have prompted the faculty man to write anonymous letters defaming him, Tarascuzio explained, was retaliation for not being invited to a bridge party at Tarascuzio's home.

POLICE HAVE LETTERS

Questioning of the faculty suspect yielded no evidence and he was excused with apologies.

Three girls mentioned in the anonymous letters addressed to Dean Roscoe L. Pound, Prof. Joseph Beale and others, were questioned in an attempt to learn the identity of the writer. They were unable, however, to throw any light on the mystery.

KAUFMAN CASE IS HELD UP

Skowhegan, Me., May 12 (AP)—Sheriff Elton L. Markham said today that Somerset county had no funds available for "any extensive inquiry" into the case of Mitchell B. Kaufman, wealthy Massachusetts manufacturer, who disappeared last November while on a hunting trip near Jackman.

Ralph Sussman, Boston, a brother-in-law of Kaufman, yesterday requesting Markham to reopen his investigation.

Markham worked on the case for several weeks last winter, spending $1000 of his annual appropriation for apprehension of criminals, "without finding any motive" for foul play, he said.

Three weeks ago the private search was reopened at a cost which ruins approximately $2000 per week, according to Markham. He said it would be necessary for the county commission to make a special appropriation of "several thousand dollars" if the county took over the investigation again.

New York, May 12—Although Bishop William T. Manning yesterday celebrated the completion of 10 years as bishop of New York, congratulations were still pouring in today.

Messages from all parts of the world were being received by telegraph, mail and phone at his home on the grounds of the Cathedral of St. John the Divine.

A service of thanksgiving with a celebration of Holy Communion will be conducted today in the cathedral in connection with Bishop Manning's 65th birthday and his 40th anniversary in the Episcopal priesthood.

Move to Put Young Otto on Throne Turned Down

Budapest, May 12—Prime Minister Count Stephen Von Bethlen has rejected the proposal of Foreign Minister Eleland of France to support a movement for the restoration of the Hapsburg monarchy in Austria and Hungary, it is reported here today.

The restoration, to have been carried out under young "King Otto," was not supported by the official press, which declared that the French scheme consisted of an attempt to play Hungary against Germany by bringing about an Austro-Hungarian entente to stave off the Austro-German customs alliance.

Knee Operation Performed on Ethel Barrymore's Son

Chicago, May 12—John Drew Colt, son of Ethel Barrymore, underwent an operation at St. Luke's Hospital yesterday to overcome a "locked" knee joint, occasioned by an injury at football.

His mother, the distinguished actress, looked on as the surgeons went about their delicate task. Dr. Edward Ryerson, who wielded the knife, said that young Colt suffered the injury some months ago, but that it was only last Friday that the joint became locked, compeling the operation. Dr. Ryerson told the mother the youth would be back on his feet again in a few days.

New Bedford Man Makes King George Laugh

London, May 12 (AP)—It took chewing gum, a grand piano and the American comedian, Al Trahan, to make King George laugh at the "command" performance at the Palladium Hall last night.

When the American comedian got involved with chewing gum which stuck his fingers to the piano keys and himself to the stool, the monarch seemed delighted. Trahan is a native of New Bedford, Mass., and before going on the stage worked as a plumber, aviator, prize fighter, wrestler, stereotyper, carpenter, iron puddler and musician. He is 35 years old.

JURY TAKES UP VAUGHAN CASE

Warner turned over to Gov. Ely his report of an inquiry to determine the alleged responsibility of Bank Commissioner Arthur Guy in connection with Vaughan's affairs.

REPORTS TO ELY

The report was contained in ten typewritten pages which Gov. Ely said he would study this afternoon and issue a statement later.

Asst. Dist. Atty. John J. Murphy began the presentation of evidence to the grand jury at 10:15 this morning.

The first witness to testify was Lieut. James L. Daley of the office of Dist. Atty. William J. Foley. He made the original investigation resulting in the lower court warrant being issued charging Vaughan with larceny of $20,600.

RECORDS OFFERED.

Lieut. Daley's testimony was brief and he was followed by Nelson B. Davis, representing the office of the bank commissioner. Mr. Davis carried records apparently having to do with the private banks for which Vaughan was receiver.

The third witness was Frederick L. Quinlan, from the office of the clerk of the Supreme Court, who, it was understood, produced the records showing the appointment of Vaughan to various receiverships.

Others to testify were Vincent h Vitolo of the Ranco Stabile and Charles S. Wiggin, First National Bank, where Vaughan had receivership accounts; J. N. Bowlby of the State St. Trust Company, in which he maintained a personal account; John J. Dolan, of the city collector's office; Frederick D. Nonor, temporary receiver appointed to straighten out Vaughan's affairs; Francis P. Kirk, certified public accountant; Inspector James F. Concannon and Bank Examiner Norman S. Chadwick, the original complainant in lower court.

ELY TO GET REPORT

The city collector's records were understood to show payments on properties in the proposed East Boston tunnel area of the North End.

Vaughan is alleged to have diverted a total of $40,000 from his other receiverships, apparently into that of his A. DiPietro receivership, in efforts to foreclose on North End land he believed would prove a bonanza because of East Boston tunnel takings by the city.

Soviet Abolishes Card Ration System

Moscow, May 12 (AP)—Joseph Stalin issued a decree today abolishing the card ration system for practically all commodities other than food, fuel and certain building materials.

This system has been in operation more than a year. It was established because of a purported scarcity of commodities, and workers were required to obtain orders from their unions or factories, to purchase shoes, clothes and other necessities from government co-operative stores.

Jury Completed in Girl Murder Trial

Valparaiso, Ind., May 12 (INS)—The jury in the second trial of Virgil Kirkland for the murder of Arlene Draves, his 13-year-old sweetheart, was completed today.

Stranded Explorers Find Monkey Meat Is Delicious

New York, May 12 (AP)—When you're stranded in the jungles of Brazil and your food runs out, you eat monkey meat—and like it.

Two of the 12 members of an expedition which left New York last December to explore the Matto Grasso district of Brazil said the meat was "delicious" if you're really hungry. John Jewell of Kalamazoo, Mich., and William E. Gresn, Jr., of Trenton, N. J., the returning members, admitted they had been hungry on several occasions. They came back to New York today on the Munson liner American Legion.

200 MILLION FOR NEW CHURCHES

New York, May 12 (AP)—The Christian World, a non-denominational religious monthly, announced today a nation-wide campaign for immediate construction of more than $200,000,000 worth of churches to relieve private funds for which Vaughan was receiver.

The third witness was Frederick L. Quinlan, from the office of the clerk of the Supreme Court, who, it was understood, produced the records showing the appointment of Vaughan to various receiverships.

Others to testify were Vincent h Vitolo of the Ranco Stabile and Charles S. Wiggin, First National Bank, where Vaughan had receivership accounts; J. N. Bowlby of the State St. Trust Company, in which he maintained a personal account; John J. Dolan, of the city collector's office; Frederick D. Nonor, temporary receiver appointed to straighten out Vaughan's affairs; Francis P. Kirk, certified public accountant; Inspector James F. Concannon and Bank Examiner Norman S. Chadwick, the original complainant in lower court.

The campaign was announced by the Rev. Dr. Jones.

Dr. Jones has been involved in almost constant agitation over the past few years over her home. After her once sizable fortune melted away, she mortgaged the house to Albert Benfield.

BARRICADED IN HOUSE

Benfield subsequently sought to foreclose when Dr. Jones fell in arrears in interest payments, and Dr. Jones resisted eviction by court action and, in one instance, by barricading herself within the house and defying a court order to vacate.

Dr. Jones was hailed into court three years ago as a result of her passion for collecting antiques when the card ration system for practically all commodities other than food, fuel and certain building materials.

This system has been in operation more than a year. It was established because of a purported scarcity of commodities, and workers were required to obtain orders from their unions or factories, to purchase shoes, clothes and other necessities from government co-operative stores.

St. Albans, Vt., May 12 (AP)—Seventeen automobiles and 19,000 bottles of liquor were seized by customs officers during April. The largest individual seizure was 200 bottles of ale in a freight car.

20 ARMY POSTS TO BE CLOSED

Washington, May 12 (AP)—President Hoover said today that the army planned to abandon between 20 and 30 army posts.

For concentration, the President said, was necessary if the Army obtains the maximum use of its facilities and operates in the most economic manner possible.

The Army has abandoned 13 posts during the last two years.

Mr. Hoover said he would appoint a committee from the Army, the Justice department, Agriculture Department and the Veterans' Bureau to investigate the possible use of its abandoned posts by those departments.

The President said he expected a "real saving" to result from a move to concentrate the army in a number of large posts, most of them on the coasts.

2 VERMONT MEN HELD IN DEATH

Hartland, Vt., May 12—John Haley, wealthy farmer whose body was found covered with horse blankets and hay in the barn of Frank Cady, was stabbed to death, it was determined today, as Cady and Cesar Leneau were being questioned in connection with the death.

The questioning at Woodstock County jail was conducted by State's Atty. Lawrence Edgerton, who said Leneau admitted having been fishing with Healy last Wednesday.

Leneau denied knowing anything about Healy's death, the State's attorney said. Both Cady and Leneau are held in jail as material witnesses.

The prosecutor said Cady admitted he had known of the presence of the body in his barn since Friday, Cady, however, would make no further statement, Edgerton said.

Medical Examiner Charles F. Whitney, following an autopsy on the body, announced that Healy had been stabbed through the heart and beaten on the head.

According to Windsor County authorities, Healy went to the Cady farm Wednesday to drink cider. He had not been seen thereafter until his body was found by William Frazier, Woodstock business man and friend of the Healy family.

He would have a survey of economic resources to determine the population limit of a country. Any excess would be in violation of international law.

STAR IS HERE TO OPEN HIS NEW SHOW

With another daughter, Helen, he opens at the Tremont tonight in his new play, "Friendship."

The show must go on—and that includes the Cohans as well as all other stage folk.

Georgette underwent a second major operation at Madison Hospital, New York, yesterday.

"SHE'S ALL RIGHT"

"She is not yet out of danger," said the famous producer-actor, "but she's going to be all right."

Worried more than George M. Cohan has any right to be, he paces his suite at the Ritz-Carleton, clad in a dressing gown, and puffes a cigar.

"How come the cigar?" he was asked.

"So I won't smoke so many cigarettes," he said. He smokes about 100 cigarettes a day.

Georgette, his daughter by his first marriage, herself an actress of ability, has been through a siege of illness that culminates in first one major operation and then another, performed yesterday.

TO GO INTO MOVIES.

"Friendship" opens tonight because plans were made in advance for the actor and his family to spend Sunday and yesterday with Georgette in New York. The show comes from Atlantic City and probably will close for the summer after a two weeks' run here, opening in the fall in New York.

Cohan will be 53 in a couple of months. He still keeps that schoolgirl complexion and talks out of the right side of his mouth.

He's staging "Friendship," he's writing "The High Sign," a comedy that will be in production next

ROGER WILLIAMS

MRS. WILLIAMS

Ever since they were fellow aviators in the World War, Thomson Burtis, playwright, and Roger Q. Williams, transatlantic flier, planned to get together sometime. They have finally made good. Both are held in New York jail—conducted especially for alimony prisoners. Marital troubles aplenty are reported in both families. Alimony stipulated by courts has not been paid by author or aviator, their wives claim. So the reunion in jail. (International Newsreel photos.)

HAMMER CASE TO GRAND JURY

Newburyport, May 12—Details of the hammer slaying of Mrs. Clara Kimball Ellis, wealthy Haverhill widow, alleged to have been committed by Russell E. Noble, Haverhill High School senior, will be unfolded to an Essex County Grand Jury, late this afternoon or tomorrow morning.

Several Haverhill police inspectors, State Officer Richard Griffin and others who played a part in the investigation of the murder were at the courthouse today waiting the time when they would be called into the Grand Jury room.

District Attorney Hugh Cregg said that he hoped to be able to reach the Noble case late this afternoon. He said if the case could not be reached that it would be first on the list tomorrow.

The sanity report, which is to be submitted by Drs. L. Vernon Briggs and Clarence A. Bonner, State alienists, who have conducted a series of examinations of Noble, will not be filed until after the grand jury has made its report.

Hennessy It Is and Who Says He Can't Run the French!

Paris, May 12—Americans have a nodding acquaintance with Jean Hennessy, one of the candidates for President of the French republic at the election tomorrow.

Mr. Hennessy is the distiller of Hennessy's Three-Star brandy, which nodded so many heads in the United States before prohibition.

He is a member of the Chamber of Deputies and a former minister, became very wealthy on the proceeds of the distilleries that distill the brandy.

While Aristide Briand is the favorite in the presidential contest and Paul Doumer second choice in the betting, the press here concedes M. Hennessy and other dark horses a chance if polling enough votes to prevent other favorites from obtaining the required majority cast by the Senators and Deputies.

HATHAWAY TO GO INTO COURT

Providence, May 12—Elliott R. Hathaway, accused slayer of Verna Russell, Fall River student nurse, will be taken into superior court tomorrow when his counsel argues motions, it was announced today by Atty.-Gen. Benjamin McLyman.

Samuel I. Jacobs of Boston, counsel for Hathaway, will argue six motions, all of which will be opposed by the attorney-general.

One motion is that the indictment against Hathaway be quashed, a second asks the right to examine the records of the grand jury. No. 3 seeks a bill of particulars, the fourth asks a change of venue, the fifth asks that the trial date be advanced from June 8 to some date in October and the sixth is for release of Hathaway on bail.

The motions for a bill of particulars and for a change of venue are expected to bring a bitter fight before Judge Charles A. Walsh when they are argued.

The bill of particulars sought would compel the attorney-general to specify the time and place of the crime, two points that have been in dispute since the slaying came to light.

BOSTONIANS IN COURT GROUP

Two Boston young women and the daughter of Ambassador Charles G. Dawes, will be presented at the Court of St. James next Tuesday and Wednesday at the season's opening presentations.

Miss Margaretta Duane, 18, descendant of Benjamin Franklin and daughter of Prof. William Duane, Harvard professor of physics and research fellow of the Harvard cancer commission, will be presented to King George and Queen Mary a week from today.

On Wednesday, Mrs. Alfred Francis Donovan of 282 Beacon st., wife of the vice-president of E. T. Wright & Co., Inc., shoe manufacturers of Rockland, will be presented.

Miss Virginia Dawes, daughter of the ambassador to England, will be in the May 19 group presented to the Court by her mother.

Miss Duane, now in England on a European tour, is a former Philadelphia girl, and attended the Agnes Irwin School in that city. According to her mother, the girl sailed for England April 23 on the Berengaria and will not return home until midsummer.

Her father is known principally for his research studies of cancer, and in 1923 was awarded the $1000 Comstock fund prize. He also holds the John Scott medal and premium of $800, as well as other honors.

Miss Adele Jahncke, daughter of Assistant Secretary of the Navy Ernest Lee Jahncke of New Orleans, is also in the group to be presented at court on May 20.

COUNTESS HITS EINSTEIN STORY

Kansas City, May 12 (AP)—Alta Moskowski, 45, the mistress of an Alberta, Canada, ranch, who claims the title Countess De Ribadeo, denied today she had duped Albert Einstein while his guest in California last winter.

A Jewish telegraph agency dispatch from Berlin quoted Frau Einstein as saying they had been victimized by an impostor who posed as the daughter of Morits Moskowski, famous composer, and had interested them in a proposed music school.

"I can't understand it," exclaimed the woman, who has appeared here recently as a concert pianist and the daughter of Moszkowski. "It is ridiculous. The Einsteins couldn't have done this."

She denied she had proposed to the Einsteins the establishment of a music school and charged that repudiation of her by the Moszkowski family was due to her father's marriage to a Gentile and her own marriage to the Spanish count, De Ribadeo, who died five years ago.

She said she had "letters from my father which will prove our relationship beyond a doubt."

PIPE BURSTS, 3 HURLED 10 FEET

Lawrence, May 12—Three employes of the Lawrence water department were hurled ten feet when a water pipe on which they were working burst in a trench at Lawrence and Haverhill sts. at noon today.

The men, stirred aloft by the torrents of water, were John McCoy, Joseph Blackwell and Robert Mulrey.

The water flooded the streets and poured into the basements of nearby buildings, forcing employes to flee.

The break occurred in one of the big water mains while the workmen were installing a new main gate valve in the pipe.

SLATER APPEAL IS HELD UP

New York, May 12 (AP)—The appellate division of the Supreme Court, Brooklyn, today reserved decision on the application made by relatives of Mrs. Mabel Hunt Slater, wealthy Boston widow, to postpone examination into her alleged incompetency ordered by Justice Morschauser.

Mrs. Slater, widow of Horatio N. Slater, Webster mill operator, was adjudged incompetent July 15, 1930, and committed to a private sanitarium at Peekskill.

Shortly thereafter her brother, Paul Hunt, and her sister, Mrs. Elinor H. Diedrich, applied for a writ of habeas corpus in Dutchess county. Justice Morschauser appointed former Supreme Court Justice Albert Seeger as a special guardian and ordered an examination of Mrs. Slater.

DAVIS HITS 'WAR DEBT GIMMES'

Conteaville, Pa., May 12 (AP)—Classing as "gimme boys" International Chamber of Commerce speakers who asked revision of war debt and tariff policies, Senator Davis said today these demands were the "boldest affronts of the kind ever offered to our nation."

He spoke at services dedicating the veterans' hospital here. After referring to President Hoover's statement to the International Chamber of Commerce that $5,000,000,000 was being spent annually to maintain armament, Davis said:

"The effect of this militaristic perfection prevailing in many quarters of Europe has already intruded itself in the internal affairs of the United States as was disclosed at the conference of the International Chamber of Commerce. Spokesmen for leading world powers bluntly demanded that the United States reduce or eliminate its tariff safeguards so that our markets may become a dumping parallel for the products of Europe.

"Furthermore, they insisted that the United States cancel war debts owed it by European nations.

"As bait they offered our country a small foreign market in exchange for a wide-open door.

"These economic demands voiced by foreign spokesmen constituted the boldest affront of their kind ever offered to our nation. No pirates of the Spanish main nor any racket lord was more audacious in his ruthless edicts."

'DOUG' SIZES UP MARRIED LIFE

London, May 12 (INS)—"Marriage is like a boxing match. You go into it with plans of what you are going to do to the other fellow, but about the second round you find that you have to change your plans and feel your way."

This is what Douglas Fairbanks told International News Service on what he thought of married life.

"I would rather not say anything about it," he said at first. But he finally added:

"Well, marriage is a matter of geometry. The general rules for marriage have proved successful, but there are exceptions and I think there will be a change.

"The great mistake is that people take each other as a matter of course after marriage.

"If you want to succeed in married life you can. I have had a very happy married life, thanks to Mary. She knows the meaning of marriage and how to run it. Her best were on the ground when we were married—I was just floating through space."

There Was Joy 'n This Payless Job

Herrick, Ill., May 12 (AP)—The Herrick Reporter may have lost money in the weekly newspaper field, but its editor and publisher retained his sense of humor to the last.

In his valedictory, published in connection with the newspaper's suspension, he said:

"Our stay in Herrick has been a pleasant one in every way except financially."

BAY STATE MAN TO GO TO POLE

Washington, May 12 (AP)—Lieutenant-Commander Edward H. Smith, of Cambridge, Mass., was designated by Rear-Admiral F. C. Billard, commdant, to be the only American representative aboard the Graf Zeppelin on its flight from Friedrichshafen to the North Pole.

Smith was born in 1889 at Vineyard Haven, Martha's Vineyard, Mass., and is a descendant of a seafaring family.

Smith will go particularly to observe ice and its behavior in the Arctic regions. He is an outstanding ice authority.

The coast guard announcement said the Graf Zeppelin would leave Friedrichshafen on July 10 and proceed to Spitzbergen to meet until the submarine Nautilus nears the Pole with Sir Hubert Wilkins' expedition. The Zeppelin and the submarine are expected to reach the Pole at the same time.

Crowd Jeers as Miners Walk Out

St. Clairesville, O., May 12 (AP)—Harassed by a jeering crowd of men, 150 miners employed at the Teplin mine of the Friends Coal Company at Bannock, near here, went on strike today.

Deputy Sheriffs experienced considerable difficulty in keeping the road to the mine open, and several were injured in a melee between miners attempting to go to work, and others who sought to prevent them.

DEATH LAID TO STATE TROOPER

Waterbury, Ct., May 12 (AP)—George M. Kerr, a state trooper, was held responsible by Coroner John T. Monzani today for the death of Mrs. Viola Walker of Bridgeport, wounded March 19 by a bullet while in an automobile on a state highway in Southbury.

Mrs. Walker and her husband, employed as servants in Bridgeport, and Mr. and Mrs. Albert Peebles, were returning home from Waterbury when five shots were fired at their car. Two state troopers were on patrol in search of men wanted for the slaying of a New York state trooper. Four shots fired by State Trooper Harold Richter, the coroner said, did not hit the car, but that from Kerr's gun hit Mrs. Walker in the spine.

Adams Sees Battle Fleet Go Into Action

Flagship U. S. S. California, off San Pedro, Cal., May 12 (AP)—The superdreadnaughts of the United States battle force steamed out into the Pacific today to train their giant guns on a phantom foe in running battle.

Decks were cleared for action and all hands stood by awaiting visibility conditions sufficient to give Secretary of Navy Charles Francis Adams, aboard the U. S. S. Argonaut, a demonstration of the gun power of his biggest fighting craft.

DOCTOR INFATAL CRASH INDICTED

Worcester, May 12—An indictment charging Dr. Maurice A. Ginsberg of Cambridge st., Cambridge, with operating an automobile negligently so that the lives and safety of the public was endangered, was returned by the Worcester County grand jury today.

Ginsberg, a dentist, was involved in a crash with two buses on the state road in Charlton on February 1, in which two women were killed. Miss Helen Gerstein, 22, of Walnut st., Dorchester, riding with Ginsberg, was instantly killed, and Mrs. Marion Jonah of Hartford Ct., a bus passenger, received injuries which caused her death.

LEADERS BACK PLAN TO 'SELL' SOMERVILLE

A plan to "sell" Somerville, launched at a Chamber of Commerce meeting last night, was enthusiastically endorsed by business men and residents of that city today.

The project, which was referred to the board of directors who meet tomorrow, provides for a campaign to promote the industrial, trade and civic development of Somerville.

Mayor John J. Murphy promised the co-operation of the city and expressed confidence the aldermen would provide on his recommendation half of a $10,000 publicity fund.

WILL RAISE FUND

Characterized as the "Somerville Forward Movement," the plan was discussed at the annual meeting of the Chamber of Commerce in the Y. M. C. A. building. President Charles L. Rhes, re-elected with all other officers, presided.

If it is accepted by the board of directors, a campaign will be held from June 7 to June 12 to raise the required $10,000. This amount will be used for publicity under the direction of G. Cornelius Baker of Attleboro.

Posters will be spread over the countryside, booklets printed and distributed, radio broadcasting and newspaper advertisements purchased to make known the advantages of Somerville from commercial and residential standpoints.

STRESS RAIL LINES

Railroad facilities on both sides of the city would be stressed, and the buying power of Somerville residents emphasized.

Mayor Murphy suggested that a city committee should be appointed to work in unison with the board's committee.

Russians continue attacking problems in direct fashion.

Russia's currency has been greatly inflated, too many rubles everywhere. The Russian government meets this by adding 50 per cent to the price of food and alcoholic drinks. Being compelled to pay 50 per cent more, to live, the people will not have so many rubles.

Yesterday you could borrow money on call in Wall Street for one per cent a year. A good stock could be bought, paying eight to ten per cent a year on the investment, and money borrowed at one and a quarter per cent to carry it, the "quarter" being the broker's profit on the loan. But you have to know how and which is the good stock.

One per cent for call money is the cheapest price since 1906. That came at the end of a depression, then called the "panic" of 1907. Perhaps our depression is ending also, perhaps not.

Youngstown Steel mills have increased their payrolls substantially. The Federal Reserve Board reports a sharp increase in department store sales for April over March and February. Sales in department stores indicate the prosperity of the public.

Department store sales show a gain for April of nine per cent over March, in spite of the fact, because of the early Easter, most of the Easter buying came in March.

Small straws are welcome, when they blow toward prosperity.

ITALY TO INVITE WORLD INTO TRADE PACT

Rome, May 12 (AP)—Italy's tripartite trade arrangement with Austria and Hungary is described on good authority as a workable substitute for the Austro-German customs accord and Aristide Briand's proposed economic remedies.

Details of the agreement will be disclosed after Dino Grandi, foreign minister, has talked with representatives of other nations at the league council meeting in Geneva. All other nations are to be invited to join the combination.

Conclusion of the agreement is regarded as of tremendous political importance since Austria can point to its as proof that the proposed union with Germany does not prevent negotiation of trade treaties with other countries.

More important from the Italian viewpoint is the opportunity to present at Geneva the accomplished fact of three trade accords while Briand's plan is still a theory.

Three points of the accord are understood to be increased trade in products which each nation desires to export, establishment of a central banking fund for extension of long-time, low-interest credits and simplification of customs formalities.

LEADERS WILL SEEK CURE FOR DEPRESSION

Washington, May 12 (INS)—Reorganization of the American section of the International Chamber of Commerce was under way today as the first step in applying that organization's program for world prosperity to the United States.

Some of the nation's outstanding business, industrial and financial leaders will be named to the American committee, charged with seeking a cure for depression in this country.

The committee will be headed by Silas H. Strawn, Chicago lawyer and business man.

Among others, the committee will include W. W. Atterbury, president of the Pennsylvania Railroad; Owen D. Young, chairman of General Electric; Newcomb Carlton, president of Western Union; Thomas W. Lamont, New York financier; Dwight W. Morrow, Senator from New Jersey; Alexander Legge, former chairman of the Federal Farm Board, and Charles M. Schwab, chairman of Bethlehem Steel.

John L. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic National Committee, probably will be asked to serve too. Other leaders, who probably will be named to the committee, include Norman H. Davis, New York banker and former secretary of state; George M. Reynolds, Chicago banker; John E. Fahey, Worcester publisher; Julius H. Barnes, grain exporter; George Swope, president of General Electric; Henry M. Robinson, Los Angeles banker; Roy D. Chapin, Detroit auto builder; John Hays Hammond; Edward A. Filene, Boston merchant; Capt. Robert Dollar, steamship operator.

GOLD AND RUM FLOW IN RENO

row—the flotsam and jetsam.

Excursionists who came in on the low fare special—the country boy and his girl friend from Lovelock, Nevada, "wage hens," tramps, "cappers."

Men sleeping by the hundreds on floors and tables in the back rooms of the all-night gambling joints—not a room to be had.

Limp figures in overalls stretched across card tables, where they dropped when flasks and pocket were empty.

The new six weeks residence law for divorce applicants—the legalizing of gambling—Mayor Roberts' edict that every man can do as he pleases so long as he doesn't kick his neighbor in the shins—is bringing them in faster than the Chamber of Commerce can amend the census rule. Five thousand additional people since May 1 is the estimate of Postmaster George F. Smith—for a town of only 18,500 citizens.

TEARLESS DIVORCEES

And the names that symbolize wealth and social prestige across the nation. Most of them hide away in the Riverside, like Lady Inverclyde of Scotland, whose incognito of "Mrs. John Burns" served well, until the reporters learned her identity.

But others are scattered in apartments, and even in farm houses.

There is the beautiful Mrs. Erma Real Hur, of Brooklyn, for instance.

Erma Real Hur rides a joyous chariot on the six weeks circuit. For that matter, a weeping divorcee is yet to be seen.

The real tears are saved for the court room.

"He beat me, judge. He was cruel to me."

Fire? Even the staid judicial armors of Thomas F. Moran and B. F. Carler, the five minute divorce champions, are no protection against attempts at it.

The bailiff, Bill Kelly, is a mighty man, and frowns on ankles. It is a swift process. The attorney identifies the plaintiff, the date of marriage is fixed. A witness swears she has seen plaintiff every day for the past six weeks. Then a few questions as to the truth of the allegations.

"Yes — Yes —" responds the broken figure in the witness chair. And his honor in sepulchral tone decrees:

"The bonds of matrimony are forever dissolved."

"Next case, Mr. Clerk."

Twenty-six dollars for the county every time the crank is turned. Six months residence for a Nevada Fishing license. Six weeks for a divorce.

Six minutes to get married.

THE PENALTY of GRAY HAIR

Gray hair—age—slipping. All these unpleasant ideas seem to go together. Yet, it is not at all necessary. Gray hair often comes to a young head and people who have it are neither old nor incapable. But how often you hear people say, "Why, she has gray hair!" and—she is on the shelf.

This penalty need no longer handicap the woman who uses Canuta Water. This is a clear, spring-like water, of wonderful properties which actually restores hair to its original girlhood color. No complicated "color plan"; no danger of getting brunette shade when your hair is blonde. Not only the one kind but the one bottle is enough. It really is surprising what successful, youthifying results it gives.

Apply Canuta Water privately, in the privacy of your own home. Many women in town are doing the same thing as they simply do not mention it. You need not mention it either. Just buy a bottle from any good druggist and get rid of the "age penalty" in gray hair. Canuta Water is safe, so scientific and sure that your dealer knows it will satisfy you or he will refund your money. Sold and recommended by Gilchrist Co., Houghton & Dutton, Kinstein Drug Co., or your own druggist.—The Canuta Co., Milwaukee, Wis.—Adv.

Between You and Me

—By the Columnist—

WAS THIS EAR RED?

Charles Kasselau, currently exhibiting in the ultra ultra Junior League Building, tells of a queer commission he once had, to paint the tin ear attached to an ex-warrior. The oils were supposed to give those aged breath of life to the false appendage. The man mounted the posing stand, but during the sitting grew very red with embarrassment. Charles continued to paint, matching the false hue to that of the real. The next day the man returned to sit again because the tin ear was a vivid blush tint while the other had returned to normal.

THOSE INTERMISSIONS

How many times have we been to the theater and yapped because there were intermissions . . . just a waste of sixteen years we went to "Trader Horn" and almost panted we wanted an ungiven intermission so badly to rest from the terrific pace of the picture. Theresa Helburn, of the Theater Guild, tells this one about the opening of "Hotel Universe," which runs for almost two hours without a curtain. In the front row were a deaf old gentleman and his wife. Every once in-a-long-time he'd lean over to her and querulously and very audibly ask, "When do we get a break, Mammie, when do we get a break?"

AH, THEY'RE PERSIAN

Pajama is derived from the Persian word meaning "leg covering." If you're wondering where to wear them, we saw a deb at the Cock Horse the other night wearing a stunning pair and no one tchked, tchked!

A cigarette concern has learned a lesson on truth in advertising and seems willing to take and profit by it. Ever notice how that first knockout billboard with the snooty looking woman gracing it had for a slogan, "True individuality can never be copied." In less than the Jack Robinson time, stores were selling rafts of the frock and chapeau said high hat femmes was wearing. The concern seems to have realized the folly of such generalities for the latest edition of aristocrat with nose veil, flaring gloves and leashed greyhound, merely bears the caption, "True Individuality."

AROUND AND ABOUT

A noise by any other name — P. J. Dinn runs an iron foundry. Peeling onions by the tearful, things looked less briney when we followed advice to put a needle between our teeth until the job was done. Sounds acrobatic. It isn't. It's helpful . . . Hair ribbons with all their perkiness are a returning fashion for youngsters. P. W. D. drivers seem not to want to be outdone by Dame Fashion. We've seen several P. W. D. horses' forelocks beautifully adorned with smacking pink bows. The horses looked abashed! . . . We can match the fretitious man born so lazy he wanted a job picking blossoms off a century plant with the Bay State rd. cop who rides his horse over the curbstone, onto the sidewalk and rings in his boxes without dismounting! In direct contrast is the man who wanted a job so badly he took a city job sweeping the streets with a broom of common variety? . . . Newsies in the Row who scream "lots of news today! Plenty of swell murders, many fires" . . . Filene's Decorating Department went amuck with a bit of bridal display. The bride's train was held by what we were emphatically told were four heroes. They still looked to us like those birds which bring "bundles" to your house! . . . Bend this one, the drunk on Washington st. hanging to the traffic light post and screaming. "Wish they'd put this thing out so I could go to sleep." Then came the wagon . . . There's apparently a regular hiking costume according to the garb of Eleonors Sears, whom we saw striding down Beacon st. in perennial pea-green suit, moccasins, lisle socks and a crushable hat. She looked as if she might be making Providence in 15 minutes ; . . Did you know that certain famous song writers have their harmony "ghost written" for them and they pay big money to the ghost? There are also firms who hire people expressly to answer prize contests. What happens if you get $50 a week and win a $50,000 prize? Well that will never have to worry us! . . . Did you know, too, that maybe one reason there's such close harmony in "That Guy" Lombardo's Orchestra is because five brothers are with the outfit?

2D OPERATION ON COHAN GIRL

winter, and he's going into the movies.

Yes, he's going into the movies.

"But it will be incidental to my stage work," he explains.

"They've been after me for a long time and I'm going to make two or three pictures. I'll probably put 'Gambling' in the films.

"NO MORE HOLLYWOOD."

"But I'm not going to Hollywood to make those pictures. They're going to be made right in New York. It won't be long before the entire movie industry is located in New York," he predicted.

Behind Cohan's decision to tner the movies is a story that he prefers at this time to keep to himself.

A year ago, with the biggest contract in the flicker industry in his pocket—$1,000,000 cold cash for "Gambling," four originals and direction of Al Jolson in one picture —he started from New York for Hollywood.

"I got as far as Chicago," he said, telling about it today. "The contract was with United Artists. I stopped off and talked with Schenck."

THEY ALL WANT HIM

He stopped off and talked with Schenck, tore the contract up and returned East. It wasn't Schenck's fault he said, but he experienced a sudden revulsion for picture work. This apparently he has now overcome and the summer will probably see him directing and starring in "Gambling" in a Long Island studio. Two companies are after him; whichever makes the most attractive offer will be accepted, not by Cohan himself but by Dennis O'Brien, a North Brookfield boy with whom he grew up.

"I never sign my name to anything. O'Brien looks after everything and has for 26 years."

O'Brien and Cohan played together on Cohan's grandmother's farm in North Brookfield. Cohan took him to New York and he is now O'Brien of O'Brien Malevinsky & Driscoll, theatrical agents.

SHE LIKES STAGE

Helen Cohan, 20 and charming, beat he rfather into the movies, but she's in legitimate with him now. She played with Will Rogers in "Lightning."

"But I prefer the stage, and if I'm half as good as dad I'll never be in pictures again," she said today.

"She has a very modest part in 'Friendship,'" her father added.

Cohan's wife, the former Agnes Nolan (Cohan calls her Aggi) of the famous Nolan sisters, daughter of a Brookline postman, accompanied him and their daughter to Boston.

A son, George M., Jr., is at Georgetown Preparatory School.

HIS AMBITION

The "old man" was within a hair's breadth of being "in baseball" as owner of the New York Giants once.

"The papers were all made out. We were to sign at 4 o'clock the next day. They told me someone else has made a better offer than mine but I'd get the team because the Giants were an institution and they wanted someone to own them who would have a persons' interest in them.

"I woke up the next morning, put the unsigned contracts in my pocket and walked out on the street. The newsboys were yelling that the Giants had been sold to Stoneham. That was back in 1918, I think. I haven't since seriously considered buying a ball club and I probably won't again.

ON TO THE GAME!

"But I can root for a ball club whether I own it or not. I can go right over on Boston Common there, pick my favorite of any two teams playing or the playground and root just as radidly as I would if I owned that team and it was making a drive for the pennant in a big league.

"And speaking of ball games, isn't there a double-header here today? The Braves and Cincinnati? Well, that's me. Hand me my coat, I'll get Sam Forest and we'll get up there."

candidates who would "defend the interests of the church" aroused republican criticism, declined to comment on the riots.

A nation-wide checkup showed 21 church buildings destroyed by fire, and perhaps 10 more badly damaged but not burned. Inmates of the buildings in every case fled, and while a few monks and priests were beaten there were remarkably few casualties among them.

Nuns in almost every case were respected by the crowd. Estimates on the number of religious workers fleeing Madrid alone ran as high as 50,000.

EFFORTS TO CONTAIN

In a radio broadcast, Don Niceto Alcala Zamora, President of the republic, called on the nation to put down the disorders. The government charged Communists and monarchists with responsibility for the disturbances and declared they were in connivance to embarrass the new regime.

The charge was echoed in other quarters, and whatever may have been the part of monarchists, Communists with red armbands were numerous on the streets, stirring up the crowds.

During the Madrid outbreaks 200 persons, including many prominent monarchists and a large number of Communists, were arrested as soon as the troops took control of the city.

RESENT CHURCH POWER

The anti-church agitation outside Madrid developed just after the capital quieted down. A mob of 300 persons burned the Jesuit convent at Malaga, raided the printing plant of the Conservative newspaper La Union Mercantil and burned it and then entered the archbishop's palace and destroyed its furnishings.

Some criticism was heard of the government's delay in calling out the military and Manuel Muino, secretary of the Madrid Administrative Council of Labor Unions, charged that leniency of the government was responsible for the rioting.

Vatican Has Faith in Spain's Loyalty

Vatican City, May 12 (AP)—Vatican officials were "painfully impressed" as reports came from Spain today of the burning of Catholic buildings in several of the large cities, but they expressed hope the anti-clerical demonstrations would subside quickly.

Spain's loyalty to the church, they believe, will be asserted in the parliamentary elections there. The church authorities attribute the Spanish disturbances to elements which do not represent the real attitude of the people.

COLLEGE education, which was once considered a luxury, later became an advantage, and is today a necessity.

In the average family, the question often is, How to ensure for the children this important preparation for living a life and earning a living? How to do this on limited means? How to safeguard them against the possible loss of the provider of both bread and education?

There is a way for parents to build a fund for this purpose—by educating Time—through LIFE INSURANCE. The best time to begin is when the children are young and the saving plan through LIFE INSURANCE can be carried out over a long period of years.

Wide Range of Jackets and Coats

By ANN ARDEN

THE DAYTIME jacket-dress idea is certainly a boon to busy womankind—especially for summer wear. It gives a cool sleeveless or short sleeved dress for indoor wear and when you go out into the street just slip into the jacket and voila—you are ready to go forth and meet the public quite perfectly and appropriately dressed.

THESE COATS and jackets that every dress owns are of every known variety. There is the straight box coat of hip length—or maybe it's a little fitted jacket that reaches only to the waistline. Augustaberning is especially fond of little short jackets. Then, there are three-quarter length coats ranging on down to full length ones that reach the bottom of the dress. There is also the bolero that brief little affair that stops before it reaches the waistline. Boleros are very flattering to slim ladies—they emphasize their slimness—but beware of them if you have a tendency toward flippiness because they also call attention to that.

WHITE WILL be the summer color de luxe; that fact was established at the smart winter resorts, and nothing is more practical, nor cooler in appearance. White is expensive—this will be your first notion. But it really is not if it is well planned. A great deal of it will wash surprisingly well. The rest will clean better than the average light colored dress.

THE SPECTATOR sports costume should possess the slightly tailored look that one achieves, fluffiness is better eliminated in the interest of good taste.

* * *

AMONG ALL the new hats that have met our wistful eyes this season the white ones are surely the most alluring. Those of white with contrasting colors used in their trimmings or foundations follow closely along calling for your admiration and respect.

Etiquette

By MRS. BEECKMAN

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:

I am about to be married, and am having an afternoon wedding, starting at three o'clock. The groom and best man are wearing afternoon suits. I am having eight ushers. Would it be improper for these ushers to wear Tuxedo suits? I wouldn't like to put my ushers to the expense of getting afternoon suits, as they all have their own Tuxedo suits. J.

J. Just can't solve this problem, dear bride-to-be. Tuxedo suits would be entirely inappropriate, and ridiculously inappropriate with the groom and best man in afternoon suits. Just figure it out for yourself. . . the groom and best man in formal day attire, and the ushers in informal evening attire. You can see that this is most inconsistent.

Either your ushers will have to privee themselves with appropriate clothes for this formal occasion, or your plans for the wedding should change.

DRY LEADERS IN FIGHT TO HOLD PROHIBITION

By WILLIAM S. NEAL
International News Service Staff Correspondent

(Copyright, 1931, by International News Service)

Washington, May 12—Believing prohibition will be a big issue in the 1932 national campaign and facing constant attacks by the wets, the Anti-Saloon League of America today is reviving the organization plan which made prohibition a part of the Constitution in 1920.

The plan of organization, involving a large expenditure of money and energy, calls for branches of the league in at least 2500 counties throughout the nation.

1000 TO DEFEND DRY LAW

When the drive of the Anti-Saloon League reaches its zenith during the presidential campaign, it is expected at least 1000 orators will be speaking in defense of prohibition—from both a political and educational standpoint.

This development of the Anti-Saloon League is also the league's answer to repeated demands upon the part of some dry advocates for a "new deal" and a new leadership in the prohibition movement.

The first move of the Anti-Saloon League will be to "plug up" holes in its state organizations. In the last few years, some states have been without superintendents at times, or two states have been merged under one head.

The second part of the plan is to extend the state organizations into all counties. There are 3100 counties in the nation of which 2585 were counted dry at the height of the political-prohibition movement.

"These 2500 counties are the front line defense of the prohibition movement," said Dr. F. Scott McBride, superintendent of the Anti-Saloon League. "They were dry before 1920 and they carried the prohibition banner to success.

"We will have about 500 regular workers and probably 1000 speakers next year. Business men's groups are being formed to co-operate with us. Fully 90 per cent of our work is educational."

BIG ISSUE IN 1932

McBride sees prohibition as a big issue in 1932. Whether it is the predominant issue in the presidential campaign depends upon developments, he says.

Denying the drys "let down" in their educational work after the prohibition amendment was adopted, McBride said the activities of the wets are bringing the question home more forcefully now.

RUBY IS DELIGHTED

City Councillor Israel Ruby of Ward 14, Dorchester, is rejoicing over his success in securing a municipal building for that section. He has been working on the project for five years and said his success was due to the active support given him by State Senator Max Ulin and Representatives Bernard Finkelstein and Julius Sobie.

SEE JERRY VICTORIOUS

Political authorities in City Hall are of the opinion that James A. "Jerry" Watson of Hyde Park will be the next city councillor from Ward 18. It is expected that "Jerry" will have the unanimous indorsement of Mayor Curley's followers in that vicinity and that he will have little difficulty in being elected. He is one of the best known men in Boston and is a former member of the council. He has been active in politics here for more than a generation. He is president of the Corridor Club and a member of the Hyde Park Board of Trade.

Rep. C. F. Nelson Pratt of Saugus has been cutting his classes at Boston University Law School so as to be sure and not miss taking part in the debate over the Taylor-Liggett pre-primary convention bill. NUNS SAVE 30 IN NASHUA FIRE

Nashua, N. H., May 12 (AP)—Thirty kindergarten pupils of St. Joseph's orphanage in Main st. were marched to safety today by the sisters of the Order of Gray Nuns when fire broke out in the laundry.

A general alarm was sounded and the blaze confined to the laundry, although smoke filled other parts of the building. Loss was estimated at $3000.

The older children of the orphanage were at St. Aloysius' parochial school several blocks away.

BOSTONIAN IN BIG RUM QUIZ

Baltimore, Md., May 12 (AP)—Two hundred witnesses from many sections of the country, officials estimated today, remain to be examined by the federal grand jury investigating an alleged alcohol diversion conspiracy said to have nation-wide ramifications.

The inquiry began May 4 and is expected to continue several weeks. Conversion of lacquer thinner and paint solvent into beverage alcohol was charged following the seizure of three large plants here in 1929.

More than a score persons were indicted and out of the present inquiry 125 or more indictments are expected.

Of five witnesses who remained over the week-end, two completed their testimony and were allowed to return home, one to Chicago and the other to Bangor, Me.

COPY U. S. SALES METHOD, WALES TELLS BRITISH

Manchester, Eng., May 12 (AP)—The Prince of Wales told British business men in an address today that they would have to copy American sales and advertising methods if they wanted a greater share in the South American market.

He spoke before the Chamber of Commerce in Free Trade hall in the second "trade clinic" he has conducted since his return from a goodwill tour to Latin America to open the British Empire trade exposition at Buenos Aires.

BEHIND IN ADVERTISING

"I am sorry to say that as a nation we are very far behind as regards advertising," the Prince said. "That is one of our national characteristics. We do great things which are of great value to the world, but we never let the world know what we have done.

"Our foreign competitors advertise a great deal and foremost among them are our friends in North America. I have heard a great many Englishmen say that the American way of boosting their goods and the American form of publicity is very vulgar.

GET AWAY WITH IT

"That is entirely a matter of opinion, but the fact remains that our friends inthe United States get away with it. To use one of their phrases they 'can put their goods across.'

"If we wish to push our goods better we will have to take a leaf out of their book. Gentlemen, those of you who have been there realize that. And to those who have not I will tell you you have to go to South America in order to realize the extent to which the influence of the North has penetrated into the industrial and commercial life of the South."

1200 BEAUTY WORKERS QUIT

New York, May 12 (AP)—The labor situation is apt to be a favorite topic of conversation around Brooklyn bridge tables today, for 1200 beauty parlor workers are out on strike in 200 shops.

The Amalgamated Beauty Parlor Employes' Association, after an all night and turbulent session, voted to begin a strike at 9 a. m. It will continue until better working conditions and a wage increase is granted, they said.

Union officials said there were 600 shops in Brooklyn dealing in marcels and permanents, but that half of them had acceded to the union's demands.

MICHELSON TO BE CREMATED

Pahadena, Cal., May 12 (AP)—The body of Dr. Albert A. Michelson, physicist who computed the speed of light and laid the foundation for the Einsteinian theory of relativity, will be cremated.

The private funeral services will be attended by a small group of Dr. Michelson's fellow scientists of Mount Wilson Observatory and the California Institute of Technology.

Services will be conducted by Dr. Theodore G. Soare, a former fellow faculty member of Dr. Michelson at the University of Chicago.

Business Is Mentally Ill, Hoover Tells Liverpool Mayor

New York, May 12 (AP)—A terse analysis of business is attributed to President Hoover by Lord Mayor Edwin Thompson of Liverpool.

He told the British Luncheon Club of a visit to the White House, saying:

"In the few minutes' conversation that we had, President Hoover said he felt that a great deal of the difficulties of the present commercial situation were due to the mental condition of business."

100,000 ALIENS LIMIT FOR 1931

New York, May 12 (AP)—Immigration officials today predicted that only 100,000 aliens would be admitted to the United States in 1931, thus setting a record law for admissions since 1862.

That figure is 10,000 less than the number of aliens to enter this country in 1918, when war measures made immigration almost an impossibility.

Consular officials now have the power to deny alien applications on various grounds, the chief of which is usually the contract labor law.

His Weakness for Peanuts Led to Fine and Jail

Chicago, May 12 (AP)—Joseph Godnickle's weakness runs to peanuts.

He'll fight for them and even go to jail for them.

Joseph insisted on eating them Sunday while out riding in his automobile with his wife. She protested that it was not safe for him to drive and eat peanuts at the same time.

She said something about driving under the influence of peanuts. One thing led to another. When they got home she threatened to call the police. Then he struck her with a poker. The judge imposed a $200 fine.

Joseph couldn't pay.

'LOST' HEADS IN WAR, BUT LIVE

Berlin, May 12 (INS)—German newspapers report with the greatest satisfaction from Paris that most of the children whose heads or hands the German troops were accused of having cut off during the war are now being discovered hale and hearty.

Ten such alleged "war victims of Hunnish devilry" are reported to have been returned to their parents in perfect health. Some of them have married since.

Two "war victims," Yvonn and Paul Clin, were found alive when an inheritance question came up, although they had been officially registered as dead.

LOSS ON POSTAL SERVICE UP TO $140,000,000

Laredo, Tex., May 12 (AP)—A postal deficit of about $140,000,000 at the close of the present fiscal year was predicted today by Assistant Postmaster-General Tilton in an address before the convention of Texas postmasters.

Tilton said this deficit would be more than $60,000,000 over the $80,000,000 loss for the last financial year.

Explaining that part of this deficit was due to the franking system, Tilton pronounced the present total so enormous as to defy adjustment for years to come unless postal rates should be raised.

Neither Congress nor the public, Tilton said, had approved Postmaster Browne' proposal of a 2½-cent first-class postage rate, but he contended this method was the "most simple and positive" to overcome the deficit.

He also advocated a parcels post rate adjustment.

Burns Peas, Called 'Terrible Cook,' Wife Ends Life

Los Angeles, May 12 (AP)—Detectives attributed the suicide of Mrs. Eleanor Wright Fisher at her Hollywood home last night to bantering about her cooking in the presence of a guest.

James B. M. Fisher, an executive for the Motion Picture Producers and Distributors Association, stated he had said to his wife:

"You've burned the peas. My, but you're a terrible cook."

Charles Baron, a mutual friend, was at the dinner table with them.

Jumping to her feet, Mrs. Fisher cried:

"Jim Fisher, if you don't take that back, I'll kill myself."

The men said they took this to be more of a joke than a threat. Investigators decided she had meant only to frighten her husband, but had become hysterical and pulled the trigger.

MARINES GUARD DEWEY HOME

Washington, May 12 (INS)—Two marines guard the mansion of Admiral George Dewey while the District of Columbia Supreme Court decides which of the four wills and a part of a fifth left by the admiral's widow upon her death here, in February, shall be executed. The guard is stationed at the house to prevent its destruction by fire.

Two petitions filed by the executors of the estate claim the will dated May 3, 1925, which left two-thirds of the estate to Frederick McLean Bugher, Mrs. Dewey's grandnephew, voided the will written October 25, 1923, in which most of the property was left to George Goodwin Dewey of Chicago, the admiral's son, and also the document executed April 22, 1925, which bequeathed half of the estate to her nephew, Edward B. McLean, local publisher.

The case may not be heard by the court until October.

Town Ousts Police Chief Who Refuses to Ride Cycle

Woodstock, Ill., May 12 (AP)—The question that puzzled some folks here today was why was one-third of the police force discharged.

One rumor was that the one-third, as represented by James Corr, night chief for 25 years, was let out because of his failure to master the intricacies of the town's motorcycle.

"Political patronage" was the official explanation, but it was rumored that Day Chief Harold Kemerling, since Corr's discharge, has gone into secret practice to master the cycle on which he is supposed to make arrests, conduct funerals safely to the cemetery and act as outrider for the marshal on Decoration Day.

Sports and a hunt for buried treasure, will be the features of the annual picnic to be given tomorrow afternoon at the B. U. MEXICO REVOLT PLOT FOILED

Mexico City, May 12 (AP)—The government, through Gen. Palencia, chief of the federal district, claimed today to have thwarted a revolutionary plot of grave proportions.

The principal leader, according to Gen. Palencia was Luis Cabrera. He was arrested Saturday and at his own request was permitted to leave for Guatemala. Palencia said a number of politicians and former army officers are involved.

According to the government announcement plans had been laid for an armed movement against the Ortiz Rubio administration, but discovery of the conspiracy by police investigators prevented its materializing.

Raul Madero, brother of the man who led Mexico's "The Revolution," had been suspected of complicity in the plot and had been detained but had been cleared of the charge, Palencia said.

A sixteen-year schoolboy was discovered to be a "one-man-crime-wave." He was captured after a series of daring hold-ups which had the 80,000 citizens of St. Joseph, Missouri, terrorized. Read about it in the American Weekly section of the next Boston Sunday Advertiser.

CHURCH WAR ON NUDITY CLUBS

Berlin, May 12 (INS)—The back-to-nature movement and the many "nudity clubs" whose members cavort in Adam and Eve costumes in open and closed places has just received a declaration of war from the Catholic Center Party.

The Centrist deputies have introduced a resolution in the Prussian Diet demanding police action against the movement, especially against the "excesses of public bathing."

The resolution demands for the sake of "decency and morals": prohibition of "objectionable" bathing costumes; prohibition of bathing costumes in public restaurants, including those adjoining public bathing beaches; prohibition of bathing in unauthorized places.

By NICHOLAS YOUNG

Even in its strictly juvenile days, the Theater Guild turned a sober mind upon a drama that was -are, if not always beautiful. The Guild has been a faithful sister to Eugene O'Neill, for better and for worse; it has profitted by the well known long chance. By similar ventures it has enjoyed its moments of aches and pains. But, much to its credit, the Guild has never wavered in its original plan; it has sought the unusual and cheerfully abided by results.

For its seasonal valedictory in this old town, a comedy by Alfred Savoir was last night placed upon the stage at the Colonial. In very short order it became not only an entertainment of highly seasoned variety, but also a bold dash into a subject that might have been the peace of mind of any one of the few remaining Puritans left among us. The Nicholas Young vanishing playgoers of these regions. What, anyone then might ask, has led to become of a drama that impersonates the accepted deity of devout Christians and makes the medium of an actor in snug fitting morning dress and a white opera cocktails at the bar of a Swiss hotel? To an astonished convention of freethinkers, who, by an almost unanimous voice, had just voted that there is no God, this young man solemnly notified an informal gathering at the bar that he is God. He bade them pause and good will, and then set about to confuse them with demonstrations.

If the situation grew momentarily alarming, with glacial slides and blizzards, the unhappy personnel of the freethinkers' convention had the assurance that all would be well if the new arrival, this self-appointed God, so willed it. And right there you had Mr. Savoir and his comedy in full working order—slightly Gallic in conception, even more so in treatment, but amply adequate for Theater Guild purposes and the excellent players called upon to unwind the story. Savoir might be, quite honestly, called the Lonsdale of the French drama; his dialogue has all the snap and vigor that is so deftly strewn through Lonsdale's crisp and fetching comedies. But Savoir always is more daring in situation.

That Savoir's fanciful character turned out in the end to be a lunatic hardly excuses the author for the occult developments presented while the man was foot-free in a beleaguered Swiss tavern. No less than the characters in the play could the playgoers be scolded for lifting a wondering eyebrow at re-current miracles—and what not. They called him He in the play and Tom Powers played him to the last despairing inch. Mr. Powers played him intelligently and with deep feeling; at no moment was the part overdone although by an aimless believe there must have been many temptations. It would have been no simple matter have turned this really amusing and wholly sincere comedy into farce. Tom Powers was the valiant guard at the gate; an actor of many moods, a player of admirable discretion.

An excellent cast, from bartender to valet, gave the comedy sustaining support. Claude Raines was an elevator man with a Napoleonic trend not exactly clear, but more than tolerably inveigled. Cecil Yapp fussed about as an unhappy and totally cantdown hotel man; Pedro De Cordoba made the most of a role demanding a constant strain upon his talents. For the youngsters, Edith Meiser, a lady of open mind from Seattle, electric and magnetic for she brought out quaint humors; and also Violet Kemble Cooper, saucily and blandish, whose affairs drifted from one male to another in easy successions. Victor Killian, as the bartender, was a man of many parts and few words. Between regard cities at the bar and his chess rivalries with a Corsican elevator man, he had no time for words. And he never left the stage.

For this experiment the Theater Guild has given its drama disciples not only an unusual play, but one that is destined to stir comment among subscribers. As entertainment it will stand any test; as comedy it will provide easy rattles for the ratters.

IN COHAN HIT

Lee Patrick appears with George M. Cohan in "Friendship" at the Tremont tonight.

Reggie White Howard Star

One of the most popular dancing stars in Mutual burlesque is holding forth at the Old Howard this week in the person of Reggie White. She was accorded a rousing reception yesterday. The comedy element serves to introduce Clyde Bates and Charles Smith. Jean Williams is another member of the company worth special mention. Billie LaMonte and the Craig sisters are prominent in the cast. Earl Root and Joe Delano offer something worth while in the realm of funland.

In addition to the burlesque, the management provides a bill of much merit. This week the boxing fans are receiving a treat by the presentation of the fight pictures of the recent Canzoneri-Kid Berg contest.

The Andresseens have an aerial novelty of the circus order that thrills. Fielder, Harriet, and company are comedians and steppers of real merit.

'Shipmates' at State Friday

Robert Montgomery makes his bow as a star as the sailor-hero in Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer's "Shipmates," which will open Friday at Loew's State, making his debut hardly two years ago in "So This Is College." Montgomery subsequently earned one success after another in such pictures as "The Big House," "The Divorcee," "Inspiration," "The Easiest Way" and "Strangers May Kiss." Montgomery's leading lady in his initial stellar role is Dorothy Jordan, who was teamed with him in "Love in the Rough. Montgomery plays the part of a gob on a naval oil tanker. He meets Miss Jordan on a shore-leave lark and tells her he is a "big oil man." Disillusionment and complications result when Montgomery discovers Miss Jordan to be the admiral's daughter, and she learns that he is just an ordinary gob.

Frank Capra Will Direct Barbara Stanwyck in "Forbidden" Film

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Universal Service Motion Picture Editor
(Copyright, 1931, Universal Service, Inc.)

LOS ANGELES, May 12—Greetings! Harry Cohn is now arriving in New York. He remains exactly four days, visiting the theaters and attending a board of directors' meeting. It isn't Mr. Cohn's arrival that is getting this headline, it is the plans he made just before he stepped on the train.

I happened to be in his office and got the inside story. Frank Capra announced that he wanted to direct Barbara Stanwyck in a picture. There was no story set within 24 hours Mr. Capra came in, handed Mr. Cohn an original called "Forbidden." I was accepted pronto and Jo Swerling was given the idea not yet used."

Louella O. Parsons

If no word like to see it. New ideas are scarce.

WHERE DID I read that Joe E. Brown was suing somebody for using his face? I believe his picture was used on a circus poster. You cannot blame Joe E. for that face of his is his trademark. That's what they thought in San Francisco when I was up there a few days ago while he was playing in "Elmer, the Great" and that is what they think at Warner Brothers Studios where Joe E. is getting ready to star in 'Local Boy Makes Good." This is an original by Walter De Leon and I wouldn't be surprised if it is something like "Elmer, the Great." It will be directed by Lloyd Bacon. Joe E. won't have to do just comedy, he is being given a chance to go dramatic. He is getting tired of depending entirely on his face, he says.

PARTICULAR CARE is being directed to Pola Negri's pictures. Charles Rogers has read and read and read trying to get something that will be sure-fire. Among the stories purchased for her is one called "Lips of Steel" by Harry Hervey, author of "The Iron Widow." It's a story of the French penal colony and has a strong role for Pola.

* * *

I AM just crazy about the title, "Rogues Gallery." Wouldn't you go to see a picture with that name? I would. Fox is making it with that popular he-man, Victor McLaglen, in the leading role. Guess who plays opposite him. Linda Watkins, recent impersonation from New York, and Alan Dinehart, also a popular New York actor, plays one of the important roles. Rowland Brown will direct.

* * *

JUST AS I sit down to the typewriter to dash off this column I hear that Jill Esmond Moore, English actress, arrives in Hollywood next week. Her first picture for Radio Pictures will be "Strange Women," opposite Ivan Lebedeff. Then she will do the I. A. R. Wylie original. Mr. Lebedeff's picture is, as he said, "Strange Women," and if he brings all of his hand-kissing, monocle-wearing and Russian court manners to the screen well, you can't tell what will happen. Richard Boleslavsky will direct.

THE SAME Rob Welch who was at one time motion picture editor of The World and later general manager of Universal is now over at Tec Arts studio, where he is forming an around-the-world film. He is scheduled to sail from Los Angeles for Hawaii, the South Seas, Japan, China and other countries. The scenes photographed on the trip will be a part of his new "Color Magazine of the Screen" series. Rob explains they will differ from the usual travelogue.

THOMAS MEIGHAN having tea at the Ambassador last week. LAWRENCE GRAY greeting PAUL ALBERT in the Coconaut Grove. That's all today. See you tomorrow!

Copley Season Successful One

With the last performance of "Compromising Anne," the Copley Players, Inc., brought to a close a season of 19 weeks. During that period, which was made possible in the face of a year that has found the legitimate theater at its lowest ebb throughout the country, the newly organized group won a large measure of praise and support from a steadily increasing audience, and provided Boston playgoers with a series of presentations of distinction and merit.

With a small resident company of outstanding players, with occasional guest stars from the New York stage, with skillful directing and diversified selection of meritorious attractions, all the elements of successful dramatic production were combined by the enterprising and competent group sponsoring the enterprise.

Opening on December 26 with Donald Ogden Stewart's smartly dialogued comedy, "Rebound," the company established a following for plays of the lighter mood.

Exeter Theater

Buster Keaton in "Parlor, Bedroom, Bath" and John Gilbert in "Gentleman's Fate" are the attractions for today and tomorrow at the Exeter. The last half of the week Norman Foster will be seen in "It Pays to Advertise." Nancy Carroll in "Stolen Heaven" will also be shown.

Air Races in 'Dirigible' Scenes

In the picture Graves is featured as a crack navy flier who breaks the cross continental air record. Then, by disobeying his superior officer, "stunts" his way out of an Antarctic exploring expedition similar to the one headed by Rear Admiral Byrd, and finally winds up by "cracking up" on the jagged ice near the South Pole.

For the purpose of securing actual naval flying background a troupe of actors, cameramen and technical experts was transported from California to the Naval Air Station at Lakehurst, N. J., where the principal flying scenes were taken.

Graves, who has been interested in flying for several years, underwent a thorough schooling on the ground and in the parachute school before the officers at Lakehurst would permit him to accompany the navy aces aloft while performing their dare devil stunts. He is probably the only civilian to have enjoyed the thrill of "hooking on" a plane to the keel of the dirigible Los Angeles —an unusually hazardous feat called for in the script.

In addition to this thrill, Graves went aloft in a plane which skimmed the roof of hangars, stunted perilously close to the ground, landed and took off from the deck of the airplane carrier Saratoga.

BOSTON STAR

Marian Marsh appears opposite John Barrymore in "Svengali" at the Met. Thursday.

Medford Girl on Screen

Warner Brothers are hailing Marian Marsh as their greatest "discovery." Miss Marsh is a Medford girl whose real name is Viola Krauth. She was selected by John Barrymore to play opposite him in "Svengali" from a score of players considered for the role of "Trilby" in the famous Du Maurier story. She was born on the island of Trinidad, her family coming to Masschusetts when she was a child.

Miss Marsh is of the athletic type. She is five feet two inches in height and her weight is 102 pounds.

In "Svengali," which opens at the Metropolitan Thursday, Miss Marsh displays for the first time her talents on the screen.

"Electra"

Sophocles' "Electra" come to Jordan Hall next Monday evening with the stars, Blanche Yurka, in the title role. Supporting Miss Yurka will be Dancer, Barbara Graham, and a cast under the direction of Robert Henderson. The production will be presented under the auspices of the Harvard Dramatic Association.

Scollay Acts Feature Comedy

Clever comedy is the keynote of the vaudeville bill at the Scollay this week. Seven acts have an abundance of song, dance and music, with comedy playing the major part.

The Kelo Brothers in an acrobatic dancing turn got the show off for a fast start, followed by the clever mimic, Connie Mitchell, who went over big.

The Four Aaibu Sisters with Allen Reno were enthusiastically received; their act is very snappy and contains much that is fine. Fred Harper and company, with Romanoff, a champion wrestler, were a hit with their "boke" comedy offering and stopped the show cold.

The Four Bachelors in classy harmony tunes did a fine job at entertaining. Harry Stanley with his company of three pretty girls presented a great song and dance turn, with Stanley providing hilarious quips. Closing the bill is Terry the "Frog," who was featured here last season in Ziegfeld's "Simple Simon."

Jane Cowl to Be Seen in "Art and Mrs. Bottles"

At the Plymouth a week commencing next Monday evening, J. M. Welch will present Jane Cowl in "Art and Mrs. Bottle."

Wilbur Presents "Third Little Show"

"The Third Little Show," a musical revue of manner called intimate, opened a two weeks' engagement at the Wilbur last evening. It was given a warm welcome. Beatrice Lillie and Ernest Truex were the featured entertainers; closely followed by Carl Randall and Walter O'Keefe. To be reviewed later.

Listening Post

MOONLIGHT NIGHTS are a detriment to radio reception, according to the scientific finding of Dr H T Stetson at Ohio Wesleyan University. He refers to Boston and Chicago stations co-operating to establish the fact that sound waves are clearer when the moon is below the horizon. Venerable Mr. Moon and his beams are of different electrical potential from that of the earth; therefore reflected signals between broadcasting stations and receivers is impossible that the old fellow is getting in his licks again the songwriters who have been making capital of his beauty for so many years. There's nothing to be done about it either, says Dr. Stetson.

AN ELABORATE program takes place at Valley Forge on Memorial Day. NBC and CBS are arranging coast-to-coast hookups to carry the address of President Hoover, in the past, Chief Executives have spoken from Gettysburg or Arlington Cemetery. This newly announced departure is said to be because of Hoover's interest in The George Washington Bicentennial, being celebrated next year. Close association of Washington and Valley Forge brought about the changed observance.

Man About Town

—By AL DUFFY—

PROSPERITY NOTE

Who said "hard times"? In nine days the circus, which left us Saturday night, played to a total of 172,345 paid admissions. Last year they played to 130,657 in 11 days and we didn't even have to call in our demon statistician to figure it out that this year's attendance exceeded that of last year by 41,688. This, in case you are interested, is pretty close to the record attendance of 193,456 chalked up in 1929, the first year the Big Show played in the Garden. Now, aren't you impressed?

If difficulties with the N. Y. local of the musicians union can be ironed out, you will soon be hearing Jacques Renard and his Master Orchestra broadcasting twice nightly with Morton Downey over a nation wide hookup. Last week Jacques and the boys made a flying trip to New York for an audition being held by the Camel cigarette people, who are planning to go on the air again. A fault, unprejudiced observer Mr. Renard himself, if you must know, was that the work of the boys just about knocked everyone at the audition for a loop. At any rate, as we said before, if the union bugaboo can be overcome Jacques and his boys will probably be set for one of the sweetest radio accounts of the year.

Dok Eisenbourg, who swings a baton and fiddles (but not at the same time) at the Waterfront Club is in a pet because we recently referred to music as a "racket." Dok writes in and refers us to Mr. Webster's well-known word book which illuminates the word "racket" with these definitions: (1) confused clattering noise; (2) a trick, dodge scheme or the like.

Dok maintains that music is more tricked, dodged and schemed against than it is tricky, dodging and scheming and, as for its being a "confused, clattering noise," he flatly declares that the crooners have settled that once for all.

We don't just know what Dok would like us to do about all this but if it will help any we'll always say "Wore shirts Erk we didn't think you cared."

REVENGE

K. D. H. all the way from Medford, came running in all out of breath to tell us about the distraught gentleman who was pacing up and down the concourse at the South Station the other day. A sympathetic attendant stopped him to ask what was wrong.

"Nothing's wrong," replied the d. g. impatiently. "Nothing's wrong; I just have a mission to perform."

Mins. more pacing and more time passed. Finally a romping young lady appeared on the arm of an equally personable young man. The distraught gentleman rushed up to them, grabbed the young man by the collar of his coat and hollered:

"Listen, everybody! This woman is my wife! This man stole her from me!"

Neither the young lady nor the young man made any reply. The young man eased the distraught gentleman's grasp on his coat lapel and the couple melted away in the crowd. The distraught gentleman stalked out of the station.

That's all.

POPE TO MAKE RADIO PLEA FOR 'LIVING WAGE'

Vatican City, May 12 (AP)—Pope Pius will speak over radio station HVJ on Friday, addressing 10,000 representatives of labor organizations from all parts of the world gathered here to celebrate the 40th anniversary of Pope Leo XIII's epochal encyclical rerum novarum on labor.

He will speak approximately half an hour, beginning at 5:30 p. m. (11:30 a. m. Es. S. T.).

It is believed he will reiterate Pope Leos affirmation of the workman's right to a living wage and will urge closer co-operation between employers and employes as when he made his first radio address last February. It is likely also that he will suggest extensive charitable activities as a means of relieving unemployment.

He will broadcast from the courtyard of San Damaso, speaking into a microphone connected with the Vatican relay station. Seventeen speakers of various national groups will precede him, Bishop O'Hara of Great Falls, Montana, representing the United States.

The Pontiff will speak in Italian and his address will be translated into 12 languages. Monsignor Francis J. Spellman of Boston, Mass., who translated the first papal broadcast also will translate this one.

Shortly after the broadcast it is expected that the Pope will issue an encyclical letter on labor. The Pontiff is working on it now and it probably will be equal in length and importance to his two previous encyclicals on education and matrimony.

New York, May 12—Distributing to his widow, children and to charity an estate valued at $5,000,000, the will of Robert De Forest, president of the Metropolitan Museum of Art, has been filed in surrogate's court.

To his widow, Mrs. Emily Johnson De Forest he left $250,000 outright and the residue in trust. Upon her death the principal is to be divided equally among the surviving children or their heirs. The Metropolitan Museum of Art and the Adirondack Mountain reserve were given $100,000 each.

More Dance Hall Supervision Asked

New York, May 12 (AP)—The committee appointed by Mayor Walker to study co-ordination of crime prevention activities, recommended today that dance halls be placed under the police crime prevention bureau supervision.

Mrs. Sydney Borg, a member of the committee, said members would ask that a sixth deputy police commissioner be appointed to supervise the crime prevention bureau, which they suggest be made a permanent body.

The Blunt Truth about A Certain Gasoline

NEARLY two years ago, the Standard Oil Company of New York introduced Socony Special plus Ethyl—the first of all the oil companies serving the motorists of New York and New England to add Ethyl to a premium fuel.

Socony engineers have not been content with their achievements of two years ago. They have bettered and improved Socony Special plus Ethyl so that week by week, month by month, it outsells any other premium fuel in Soconyland.

It is not remarkable that Socony should have this two-year margin of leadership. Socony engineers have always had one great and exclusive advantage. They are specialists in the conditions and needs of Soconyland. They know its roads, its temperature, its weather, its hills. Socony products are made for New Yorkers and New Englanders for use in New York and New England.

That is why we say that Socony products are "tailor-made" for Soconyland. That is why, everywhere in New York and New England, SOCONY is "Standard."

If you want—and you undoubtedly do want—a gasoline two years ahead in anti-knock performance, in quick starting, in acceleration, in power, in mileage, in economy, try Socony Special plus Ethyl. It is specially made for you as a Soconyland motorist.

BACK BAY WOMAN NIPS 'CABLE RACKET' PLOT

Judge Warns Victim Stripped in Speakeasy Robbery

HER VOICE WAS EXTREMELY AGREEABLE TO CLIVE

Day by day Clive Grant had seen her from his window on Fifth Ave. as she lingered during the luncheon hour before a window in which were displayed alluring Spring hats.

All sorts of the latest creations were there, hats that tilted with a saucy angle over the ear, but her eyes were focused on a symphony in blue.

He couldn't resist, walking casually along the third day so that he could look more closely, not at the hats, but at the girl.

Then he saw that her eyes were as blue as the hat, that her cheeks were red but not with rouge, and that she had a wistful look as though life lacked something to make her happy.

He thought he knew what that something was—the blue hat—when she passed along, he went boldly into the shop and asked the price, serving himself for the answer.

Needed Fortitude
The Hat High-Priced

He needed all his fortitude—it was $28 marked down from $3

He beat a hasty retreat, wondering what in the world there was about the bit of blue straw and the blue ribbon that would flneif about the brim that could possibly be worth $28, but there was no one to give him an answer.

The question was now how could he meet the girl who admired the blue hat—obviously he couldn't enroll to her, and yet he was most anxious to know her.

And there was no certainty that he would see her again, for there was no certainty how long the blue hat would remain in the window.

So Clive did what he had done before, he followed the girl with the blue eyes to the office building where she evidently worked, went up in the same elevator, got off at the same floor and surreptitiously watched her enter a door labeled Jessup & Jessup, attorneys-at-law.

So far so good. Then he was back again at his own desk he started to run over the names of friends in the law, and he couldn't think of one who would help him. Then he thought again—there was a way—a simple way—he'd been having some trouble with a customer—he could seek legal advice. He could go to the office of Jessup & Jessup and there he might get an opening that would lead to a meeting the girl

For Legal Advice
Clive Entered the Office

His entry into the law office was not without a thrill. He gave his name and was ushered into a small room where the girl with the blue eyes sat at an ornate desk and smiled sweetly at him.

Her voice was very agreeable as she invited him to sit down and he noted with approval that she seemed quite at ease. That of course would be a requisite in her capacity of receptionist with a firm like the Jessups.

Clive transacted his business, but the lawyer with whom he talked saw no occasion for his coming again. He lingered in the "reception room to say thank you and goodbye.

But the next noon he happened on purpose to pass by the window where the blue hat was on exhibit, marked down now to $23, wistfully observed by the girl with the blue eyes.

"Oh, Mr. Grant," she said, "I'm admiring these hats."

She was quite frank about it, just as if she had said "I'm admiring the Empire Building," and quite as impersonally.

Clive met the young lady again in a day or so. She greeted him with her usual smile, but she pointed sadly to the window.

"Being a mere man" she remarked, "of course you wouldn't understand but the hat that was in the window there has gone—it was the dearest, duckiest hat—no chic—I tried it on—perfect, but it—well, why sigh for the moon?"

Clive felt a thrill—what would Marie say when she reached some that evening and discovered the blue hat waiting for her? She would have given a great deal to have seen her; they talked about the weather and spring and the country and the unemployed

Clive found her charming, but he couldn't think of any logical reason why he should ask her if he might call. All he could was express his pleasure at their meeting and hope to see her again.

But she did tell him her name—Maria Fantrias and confided the fact that she lived with her father and mother and four small Pentrines in The Bronx

What a wonderful thing it would be, thought Clive, if he could make her a present of the

CURLEY'S BOAT ONE DAY LATE

A radiogram received from Mayor Curley at sea today revealed that receptions planned for him in England will be held up 24 hours because of delay to the boat on which he party is crossing.

The message, received by Secretary Cornelius A. Reardon at City Hall, read:

"All well. Boat will be one day late. Notify authorities at Plymouth and Boston, England."

Officials of Plymouth, England, had arranged a reception for the mayor for May 14. Another was scheduled for Boston, England, for May 21.

Secretary Reardon said the mayor's party has been invited to visit Lord and Lady Astor among others, and will see the Royal Yacht Club.

On the 16th the party leaves for Liverpool and a trip through Ireland

After three days in London the party will leave for Paris May 24. There the mayor will attend the Colonial Exposition and make his first speech in French. Then follows a short tour of France, and a visit to Rome and a meeting with Mussolini; the party sailing for home about June 8.

JURY TO PROBE COAL COMPANY

Asst. Atty. Gen. Louis H. Sawyer and Inspector John Mitchell are ready to go before the Suffolk County Grand Jury tomorrow in connection with the sales organization of the bankrupt Brotherhood Coal Co.

The line tigation into the methods of selling stock by the company was started by Atty.-Gen Joseph Warner's office when it became known that the losses reached a total of more than $2,500,000.

Sawyer and Mitchell today conferred with the grand jury in regard to their inquiry

More than a week is expected to be consumed in the hearings, with 20 or more executives of the company, including twnp prominent coal operators of New York and Pennsylvania, as witnesses.

It was learned that stock was sold with a premium of "bargain" prices on coal to stockholders and that many railroad employes, members of the Brotherhood of Railroad Engineers, were victims of the sales.

BACK BAY WIFE PUSHES 'CABLE RACKET' CASE

Mrs. Winthrop Denies She Expected Liquor From Her Husband Abroad

Indignant denial that she had expected liquor in a shipment following a fake cablegram from her husband was made today by Mrs. Frederick Winthrop of 299 Berkeley st., as police sought to bring two alleged "cablegram racketeers" back to Boston from New York.

The alleged heads of the "racket," Irvin Robins and Louis Goldberg were arrested in New York yesterday on indictment warrants secured last month. It is believed, however, they will fight extradition

PUTS END TO SWINDLE

Their asserted swindle was a fake liquor delivery, by which relatives and secretaries of business men traveling in Europe were instructed to forged cablegrams to pay large sums for bunnies that the cablegrams inferred contained liquor. It was Mrs. Winthrop's complaint that halted the "racket."

"I suppose every dry hound in the country and every bootlegger will be after me now," said Mrs. Winthrop, who is the former Sallie Thayer, daughter of Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer.

"I didn't think there was any liquor in the bundle when it arrived. I really thought the cablegram was from my husband, because it arrived on almost exactly the day he reached Madrid, Spain.

"The swindlers were so clever that they discovered I am very fond of rare rugs and that my husband is fond of them. I supposed the bundle contained valuable rugs my husband was sending from abroad.

WILL PRESS CASE

"The swindlers evidently learned the exact time of his sailing in the middle of March. A short time after he sailed a call came from New York asking his business address. I said his address would be 299 Berkeley st., but that he was abroad. I thought nothing of the call at the time.

"I didn't open the bundle right away, as the despatch said there was a letter following. When I did not receive the letter, I opened the bundle and discovered a lot of worthless rugs.

"After this story I suppose all my friends will have the laugh on me, but I'm going through with the prosecution—laugh or no laugh But with the dry snoopers and the bootleggers who may get after me, I'll be between two fires."

MAY ACCEPT LOSSES.

The fake cablegram to Mrs. Winthrop read

"Made arrangements for shipment of one bale, coming through to you from Pagnal. Follow his instructions to receive same. Matter must be handled strictly confidential. Amount to be paid seven hundred sixty dollars. Letter following. (Signed) Frederick Winthrop."

The rugs were sent in a taxi from the South Station, the taxi driver collecting the $760 and then it is alleged turning it over to the racketeers at Bay State rd. and Ashby pl.

The indictment against Robins and Goldberg charges the pair with larceny of $760 from Mrs. Winthrop, but while she had courage enough to make a complaint, scores of other prominent Bostonians have preferred to take their losses and remain silent.

In nearly every case, it is understood, the scheme worked, especially when the fake cablegram was worded in such a way as to infer that the shipment contained choice liquors.

A 'BEAR' OF A BEAR

There was a carload of animals aboard the City of Christiana when she arrived in Boston from Calcutta and Port Said. They were consigned to the Benson Wild Animal Farm at Nashua, N. H. One of the most playful was the cub bear, being "jollied" by William Lambert, a member of the ship's crew. (Staff photo.)

GIRLS' BATTLE INTERRUPTED

Out of the West (End) rode a chivalrous reporter to the rescue of two damsels in distress.

They were battling each other in a Joy st. doorway and while a large crowd remained inactive, watching, he plunged into the fray and separated them.

It would have been a much better story if the peacemaker had then felt the effect of their combined wrath, but, being young, he overlooked the possibilities and calmed them.

Then the police arrived and arrested one of the girls, Dorothy McKay, 2, of Cambridge She appeared in Municipal Court with two black eyes and was found guilty of drunkenness and given six months probation The probation officer said she was an alien from Nova Scotia and the immigration authorities would be notified.

BOSTON HAS $5 BABY PAY PLAN

Boston has its own "baby bonus" plan. And, furthermore, Boston's plan is far superior to that of Chicago, according to Miss Louise S. Zutter, supervisor of the Boston Lying-in Hospital.

Miss Zutter's revelation was made in reference to announcement by a Chicago hospital that it had distributed for sale coupon books calling for payments by expectant mothers as low as $5 a month.

"We, and other Boston hospitals, have had the installment plan for some time," said Miss Zutter "An expectant mother can come into our hospital with an original payment of $5 with assurance of the best of care and make similar payments as she receives treatments.

"In cases where the mother is too poor to pay at the time of the treatment, she can pay later."

'DRINK BETTER LIQUOR!' COURT TELLS HIM

His Honor Frees Suspect Accused of Aiding in Stealing Man's Clothes

It was all very confusing, even today, to Michael Flannery, and Judge Dowd didn't make it any easier when he advised Flannery to drink better liquor if he wished to go home in other than his pink skin and his hat.

Flannery, who is 53 and lives in Hanson st., South End, awoke in a South End speakeasy to find himself arrayed in nothing more than his hat. This was very embarrassing, indeed, to Mr. Flannery, and it was more embarrassing when he had to go home in a taxicab and put the finger on his bushing landlady for the fare

Today he had Cornelius Bailey, a colored lad of Tremont st. in Municipal Court, but admitted doubt about Bailey's guilt

"Corpulus" questioned Judge Dowd — whose given name is John — when the colored lad stepped up to the bar to answer the larceny charge.

"Cornelius," affirmed the court clerk.

Then Flannery told the story of waking up, unclad and chilly, with only his hat left, in the speakeasy, where he said he had gone with one colored lad and three white ones, and of finding his clothes later in the basement of Bailey's home.

Flannery said he was doubtful whether Bailey was the man, however.

"I never saw the man in my life," opined Bailey.

Judge Dowd turned with a twinkling eye to Flannery.

"If you want to keep your clothes on, drink better liquor, my man," the Judge said. "Not guilty and discharged."

Malden City Clerk, at 87, Takes His First Auto Ride

Eighty-seven years young, city clerk of Malden for 41 years, but it wasn't until last night that Leverett D. Holden experienced his first automobile ride.

There have been automobiles in the Holden family for 15 years or more, registered in Miss Bessie's name, but not once has her father set his foot inside the doors of one of the machines.

Fate, in the form of a meeting of the Theodore Winthrop Camp, No. 51, Sons of Union Veterans of the Civil War, G. A. R. Hall, stepped in and ordained Mr. Holden to experience his first ride in a "gas buggy."

John E. Glover of Malden has the honor of acting as Mr. Holden's chauffeur, having driven in the Chelsea ball and return with the last surviving veteran of Co. H, First Massachusetts Infantry, as his passenger.

Today at City Hall, Mr. Holden refused to comment on his ride, but there was a noticeable twinkle in his eye when he was asked if he liked the experience.

N. E. Shows Up Well on Unemployment

New England fared slightly better than the entire nation in employment and business conditions during the last few weeks, according to Fred C. Croxton, vice-chairman of the President's emergency employment committee, today.

He said conditions throughout the United States showed considerable variation. In some southern localities increased seasonal demands for agricultural labor has reduced the number of unemployed In New York the total unemployed registered with the police department May 8 was 74,955, as compared to 74,857 last month.

Jennifer in Deadly Fear of Discovery in Grove as Revels Increase

By Fannie Hurst

(Copyright, 1931, by Fannie Hurst.)

JENNIFER LEANED toward Wilke-Barre.

"I thought you were Bobby Shaffer, who went to sea with silver buckles on his knee."

The youth she thought was Bobby Shaffer, who went to sea with silver buckles on his knee was asleep, his chin resting squarely and precariously in the shallow crystal basin of his empty champagne glass.

Before the girl's name left was to reach the Roosevelt-looking Wilke-Barre chin with splintered glass, Berry was back in greet and rising spirit.

"Glory! what a night!"

"It was on such a night as this—"

"—that I made the daunnedest mistake of my life," said Berry, and, picked the green athletic hulk of his body back to his place at the table

Looking for Him

"Leslie's been looking for you, Berry," said Irene Annesey.

"Finders keepers," said Berry under his breath to Jennifer.

"Mean that?"

"If I ever meant anything, I mean it Find me, Jennifer."

"You won't let me."

"Try me."

"Don't be darling to me, Berry, unless—"

Beneath the table he heard palm clamped down on her knee.

"How can I help it, when you are darling to me."

"How do you mean that?"

"I'll tell you later—"

"I'll not drive back with you alone unless—"

"Unless what?"

"Unless I please," she said, and swung her smooth bare shoulder from him and turned to talk to Wilke-Barre, who was having his chin nuzzed by a princess of Greece.

Tom Edgerton began to beat a tom-tom in an effort to drum up trade for his boiling pot of corn on cob

Voted Ridiculous

Most of those who ventured never quite reached the boiling pot. The garden lay embalmed in a night through which the moonlight poured like spring showers. Marble curve of benches gleamed in amorous Islands of shadow crawled back into the groves. The waterfall that fed the natural swimming-pool made silver-tipped commotion. The dinner broke into dancing almost before the tables could be cleared from the tiles. It was as dreamy as absinthe to tango out there under the stars

Six Hawaiian boys in shell is led by a sang to Argentine music A jazz-band alternated. A Spanish sup of a gal, with hips which she managed like a spaniel shaking off water, danced solo with Romeo Lopez, the bold, anxious boy beauty went through you in points of excitement. The give of the alien pickets of her ribs as she doubled with a boneless ductility back over his elbow.

Slitted eyes of Ramon, braced for her whirling body to spin into the close insinuating haven of his arms. Slow shuffling feet, too sensuous to be the proper lip hiked back to reveal small wet teeth Ramon's face sliding down like a warm brown breathing bib over hers

"Berry, they're wonderful," said Jennifer.

His body, through it all, as they stood in the thick fringe of onlookers, had been crushing against her. It had been her dance with Berry, vicariously.

The pair broke into a tarantella

G.O.P. NEEDS TO GET LEADERS, HE ASSERTS

Former Registrar Takes Rap at Officials as He Jumps Into Pre-Primary Row

Frank A. Goodwin, former registrar of motor vehicles, today jumped into the pre-primary convention squabble with a vitriolic attack upon Chairman Amos L. Taylor of the Republican State committee and National Committeeman Louis K. Liggett.

He denounced the two party officials as "political chaselers" and "stuffed shirts."

"As a Republican who received 120,000 Republican votes in a primary, without money or organization, I think I have a right to express an opinion at this time.

"Amos Taylor and Louis Liggett should retire at once, for the good of the Republican party. They are a couple of 'political chaselers' and, to use another ilang expression, 'stuffed shirts.'

"They remind me of Mr. Van Porter and the Kingfish in the Amos 'n Andy sketch. Neither one of them could be elected as 'hogrieve' or 'fence viewers' in his own town, yet they are presuming to tell the people of Massachusetts what is best for them.

"Instead of calling a meeting of the Republican leaders to consider prohibition it would seem to be far more appropriate for the rank and file of the party to have a meeting and get some leaders."

2 GIRLS DUPED ON AUTO RIDES

Two New Hampshire girls, who twice started to walk home from automobile rides last night, were picked up by police in Lynn early today.

They gave their names as Loretta McDonald, 18, and Madeline Baker, 20, both of Dover.

Weary and footsore, the girls were found on a doorstep at Western ave. and Chatham st., Lynn, by Sergt. Frank Lawler.

To him they told a story of misplaced confidence in young men which led them to accept invitations for rides home, the first time from a dance in Portsmouth.

Instead of going home the two youths drove to Newburyport, where their advances forced the girls to disembark, they said. Trudging along the road to New Hampshire, they met another machine and again accepted an offer to ride home.

As before the car went in the wrong direction, and Loretta and Madeline started walking once more. After some time they sat down to rest and were found by Sergt. Lawler.

TRIO GET $44 IN LYNN HOLDUP

As he entered the apartment he said three men stepped forward, one one announced:

"We're hijackers. Hands up!"

The collector told police that before he could comply, he was struck over the head and robbed of all the money he had, $38.

She was sentenced to an indefinite term at Sherborne and appealed. She was held in $1000.

O. box 384, New London, Ct., with the report of the collision of the steamer New York and the tugboat Tremount, and a Nashua, N. REPORT DUE ON DISTRICTS

The sub-committee which has been re-arranging the congressional map of Massachusetts to make 15 districts where there are now 16 is expected to make a report in the full redistricting committee today.

At the present time a majority of the Republican leaders on Beacon Hill are still inclined towards an arrangement under which Waltham, the home city of Congressman Robert Luce, would be put into the district with Cambridge, the home city of Congressman Dallinger. This plan would cause a considerable upheaval in Republican political circles.

Worcester Bans All Gang and Racketeer Moving Pictures

Worcester, May 12—Most pictures of the gangster and racketeer type are taboo here, following a general order issued to all theater managers and owners by Chief of Police Thomas F. Foley.

The order is the result of a conference between Foley and the Board of Censorship, at which it was decided that pictures of this type have a serious effect on youths with a criminal twist of mind.

A gang picture now showing at a downtown showhouse was ordered off the screen.

It was said that the order was the most drastic piece of censorship ever issued in Worcester.

FOLEY OPPOSES JUVENILE BILL

Dist.-Atty. William J. Foley today vigorously opposed raising the age limit of juveniles from 17 to 18, at a hearing conducted by the legislative committee on the judiciary.

"The proposed change would do away with the right of the district attorney to handle cases of delinquents between the ages of 17 and 18," he said.

"There are so many of this age committing serious crimes that I think it is a move in the wrong direction.

His view was concurred in by Police Chiefs Hill of Everett and Rutherford of Brookline, representing the Massachusetts Police Chiefs' Association. A bill raising the age has passed the preliminary stages in both House and Senate but was held up when protests were received.

'L' BILL PASSAGE SEEN BY ELY

Governor Ely today endorsed the Boston Elevated 28-year extension public control bill, which comes up in the House for debate tomorrow, and predicted its passage.

"That is, under the circumstances, not a bad bill," he said. "I think it will pass."

RIGHTS PRESERVED

Under the Higgins amendment, rights which the State now has in the road would not be waived. On the contrary, the State would retain such rights, including the right to reduce fares, compel service, impose conditions and restrictions, and to annul or repeal the proposed act.

Another amendment, offered by Rep. Clarence S. Luitwieler, of Newton, would have the Metropolitan Transit District, composed of the cities and towns served by the 'L,' buy all the outstanding stock.

COST $1 MILLION

Luitwieler figures that, based on the average price of the stock, $111, the amount of bonds required to take over the road would be in the neighborhood of $51,000,000. With the low interest on bonds floated by the State, the Newton man claims a sinking fund can be set up under which the district will own the road at the end of 25 years.

This plan, he said, would not be public ownership, because the district, unlike the State or a city or town, would be created a corporate body for this purpose.

The other amendment, offered by Rep. Albert P. Bigelow, of Brookline, acting chairman of the House Ways and Means Committee which reported the bill, puts back in the bill the continuance of leases of the subways.

AIR MANEUVERS 'CRASH PROOF'

Washington, May 12—Aware that danger lurks in the concentration of 672 airplanes in the spring Air Corps maneuvers beginning in Dayton, O., Friday, Army air chiefs have taken every precaution against accidents, and have provided for almost instantaneous hospital service in case of crackups.

In the first place, according to plans for the maneuvers over Boston, Dayton, Chicago, New York, Washington, Philadelphia and other East coast cities, no attempt will be made to "carry on" in bad weather.

Although weather is an element of danger "all in the day's work" in wartime, officials see no reason for submitting the air corps unnecessarily to danger in peace operations.

"This is not a real emergency."

Truman Davison, Assistant Secretary of War for Aviation, said today. "It would be poor policy that called for risking the safety of personnel and equipment, particularly in view of the fact most of our operations will be in the vicinity of thickly populated centers such as Boston, Dayton, Chicago, New York, Philadelphia and Washington."

"Hospital Day" Is Observed in Boston

Hospitals throughout Greater Boston today observed National Hospital Day with many residents availing themselves of the opportunity to become better acquainted with facilities for treatment.

While the larger hospitals made no special preparations for the observance of the day, some of the private institutions, including clinics, set aside the day as one of inspection. Chief among the clinics was the Reconstruction Clinic and Hospital, 264 Commonwealth ave., which has been treating the poor of Boston for five years.

FIRE INSURANCE THE BULWARK OF TRADE

THE volume of trade in the United States is estimated at more than 80 billion dollars annually. Probably 90 percent of this is transacted on credit.

The underlying safeguard of credit is Stock Fire Insurance, with more than 150 billions of dollars constantly at risk in the protection of property in this country against fire losses, with an almost equal amount covering hail, windstorm, earthquake and other hazards.

The Silent Partner of Everyone

Few indeed are the activities of the home or of business that are not benefited directly or indirectly by the stabilizing effect of Stock Fire Insurance and the security that it affords.

Stock Fire Insurance is the silent partner in every enterprise—the Bulwark of Trade. It has rendered its service at a cost which on the average has constantly declined for many years.

STOCK FIRE INSURANCE

has also contributed in many ways to the greater safety of life and property. Its sponsors believe that the foremost gain to any individual or community lies in preventing those losses which no amount of insurance can cover.

ELY WAITS ON NEW REGISTRAR

Gov. Ely indicated today that he has not yet made up his mind on a successor for Registrar George A. Parker, whose resignation has been pending for several weeks.

Asked if he would send the name of Parker's successor to the council tomorrow, the Governor said:

"George Parker is a good registrar. He is performing his duties well and will continue to perform them well until someone else is appointed.

"The state is not suffering by the delay. The only one suffering is the man to be appointed because he is not drawing his salary."

MAYOR CURLEY BACKS PLAN IN LETTER

Proposed Route and Details Are Revealed at Public Hearing

A crowd of 800, mostly South Shore residents in favor of a bridge from Boston to Nantasket, filled Gardiner Auditorium of the State House today at a legislative hearing on the proposed shortcut "tollway."

It was a sort of holiday in several South Shore communities, while auto owners transported their friends and neighbors to the hearing to "root" for the project, and at one point in the hearing they did actually cheer for it.

Mayor Curley was recorded in favor by Frederic H. Fay, chairman of the city planning board, who read a letter from the mayor.

COST IS 20 MILLION

Fay said that opposition voiced at a Chamber of Commerce hearing last week had induced the sponsors to plan for bridges 170 feet above mean high water, or 40 feet higher than Brooklyn bridge, so all ships could pass under without hindrance.

He placed the cost including interest at $20,000,000 and said the company which asks the right to build the route, the South Shore Bridge Co., would charge 50 cents tolls for each auto, plus 5 cents for each passenger.

Joseph A. Conway of Hull explained the company would issue tax-exempt bonds which the State would in part underwrite. From this third year on, the state would guarantee any default of interest and in this emergency would collect the tolls.

Fay stated that with an estimated use by 2,000,000 vehicles a year, no financial difficulties were feared.

PROPOSED ROUTE

The route as now planned is for a highway from Columbus circle, South Boston, to the cow pasture; high-level bridge over Dorchester bay to Squantum Neck; to Hough's Neck; high bridge to Great Island and thence to Nantasket near the steamboat pier, with a branch route to Hingham.

The scenic attraction of a bridge 200 feet above the harbor, in addition to the short route to Nantasket which would be only about 20 minutes from Boston, was described by Fay.

Mayor Curley's letter said that in his opinion the plans safeguarded shipping and other interests and that with an East Boston traffic tunnel opening a route to the North Shore, there should be a counterbalancing fast way to the southeast.

Roslindale Out in Force to Protest Against Cemetery Extension

MRS. ALICE GLEASON MRS. F. H. WEACHTER MRS. F. B. COOPER REP. LOGAN COUNCILLOR MURRAY REP. WHITE.

ENLARGEMENT PLAN FOUGHT

CARDINAL IS ON THEIR SIDE

More than 400 residents of Roslindale turned out at a hearing on the proposed enlargement of St. Michael's Cemetery to voice their protest. Many claimed to have bought homes with the understanding the cemetery would not be enlarged.

Rep. Logan said the city must keep faith with those who bought homes in the neighborhood. Councilor Murray said all ministers in the neighborhood were against the extension.

Rep. White added his protest and they were all backed up by speakers who reported that the cardinal believed in protecting the investment of those who had bought homes.

JILTED YOUTH IN COLLAPSE

Jilted by Miss Rita Blum of Cottage rd., West Roxbury, that she no longer cared for him James Murray, 22 of Sellman rd., Roslindale, became so wrought up that he collapsed and was rushed to the City Hospital early today.

Arriving at the home and he was suffering from hysteria. They stated that Murray, when informed of Miss Blum's decision wept, stormed and swore and was on the point of forcing his way out the door when he collapsed.

A short time after he was admitted, Miss Blum appeared at the hospital and when asked if she wished to see him responded in the affirmative. Then just as suddenly she changed her mind and left the building.

Murray soon recovered and he too, left the hospital.

John F. Better

Former Mayor John F. Fitzgerald has been permitted to sit up at his home, 39 Welles ave., Dorchester, where he is recuperating after attack of bronchial pneumonia.

ANIMAL LEAGUE HIT-RUN DRIVE

The Animal Rescue League of Boston will continue its campaign against hit-and-run drivers who strike animals, according to its 324 annual report, issued today.

"It is as punishable at law to hit-and-run an animal as a human," William B. Brigham, managing director, points out in the report. "We prosecuted one case successfully, and will assist in every possible manner persons whose pets have been killed or injured by motorists who say to themselves, 'It is only a dog' and drive away without making themselves known."

An appeal was made to people of Lynn for better support of the Sheldon Branch there.

"We collect homeless animals a year in this territory, practically all at our own expense for we receive nothing from any of the local governments and almost nothing from their people," Brigham said.

A total of 75,902 animals were collected during 1930, as follows: 39,279 cats, 15,788 dogs, 626 horses and 199 smaller animals. Net income for the year was $80,259.56, expenditure $99,780, deficit $19,-520.51.

CEMETERY PLAN FOUGHT BY 400

More than 400 residents of Roslindale appeared at a hearing held today by Dr. Francis X. Mahoney, city health commissioner, to oppose enlargement of St. Michael's Cemetery by the Italian Catholic Cemetery Association.

Two speakers put Cardinal O'Connell on record as opposed to the extension, while Judge Frank Leveroni fought the battle for the cemetery association single-handed.

The opposition was based on the fact many families had bought homes in that section with the understanding the cemeteries would not be extended.

Dr. Mahoney explained the hearing was based only on the question of health and he could make no decision anyway, but would turn over the names of all those opposed to the city council, which has the final say in the matter.

Edward A. McLaughlin, a nephew of the Cardinal by marriage, said the Cardinal was opposed because of the general character of the neighborhood, people having invested their life savings in houses in that district.

John F. Cunningham also placed the Cardinal on record as opposed, and City Councillor Peter Murray said all clergymen in the vicinity were against the petition.

Representative Joseph Logan said the city must keep faith with those who bought homes in that district.

1500 OPPOSE OIL FARM

After a lengthy and stormy hearing in Revere City Hall, the City Council early this morning postponed action on the plea to permit a huge oil farm in the city.

This morning the opponents of the establishment of the oil farm on the marshes between Orient Heights and Winthrop ave., Revere, started to enlist a still bigger crowd for the continuation of the meeting next week.

The meeting overflowed the council chamber at the outset and was moved into the municipal auditorium, which was also soon packed to the doors with 1500 present. The Boston Port Development Co. and the 56 Green estate are the proponents of the plan.

The oil farm as proposed won't be greater in size than the combined storage plants in Everett, Chelsea and East Boston.

Charles H. White presided over the meeting. Atty. Francis T. Leahy, for the petitioners, said that the plant would furnish Revere with $4,000,000 to $6,000,000 in taxable property without expense.

Ex-Mayor Alfred S. Hall also spoke in favor of the tanks.

Fireman Can Only Worry While Home Burns

Henry O. Rounds, on floor duty at the Malden fire headquarters, answered the telephone when an excited woman asked for apparatus.

"What's the address?" asked Rounds.

"Fifty-five Hillside ave.," replied the woman.

Rounds used plenty of speed in notifying the Belmont Hill fire station of the fire and two pieces of apparatus were sent. It was Rounds' own home but he could not leave his desk to respond. He did use the telephone, however, a few minutes later and found that the fire started in a second floor closet from a short circuit of wires and the loss was small.

For TEETHING troubles

FUSSY, fretful . . . . of course babies are uncomfortable at teething time! And mothers are worried because of the little upsets which come so suddenly then. But there's one sure way to comfort a restless, teething child. Castoria — made especially for babies and children! It's perfectly harmless, as the formula on the wrapper tells you. It's mild in taste and action. Yet it rights little upsets with a never-failing effectiveness.

That's the beauty of this special children's remedy! It may be given to tiny infants—as often as there is need. In cases of colic and similar disturbances, it is invaluable. But it has every-day uses all mothers should understand. A coated tongue calls for a few drops to ward off constipation. Sour stomach and suggestion of bad breath. Whenever older children don't eat well, don't rest well, or have any little upset, a more liberal dose of this pure vegetable preparation is usually all that's needed. Genuine Castoria has Chas. H. Fletcher's signature on the wrapper. Doctors prescribe it.

Lorry Asks Mary Lou for Love

MARY LOU was very popular that evening. There were dozens of more or less idle and eligible young men out from town only too anxious for an introduction, a dance. She forced herself out of her heavy abstraction and gave them her blue, friendly glance, her quick smile, set herself the task of moving, in their arms, to the heavenly music, the task of responding to admiring comment, serious discussion, witty wisecrack. It was by far the longest evening she had ever spent. She had been playing a role for a long time, however, a role that had become part of her and all too real; she must, it seemed, play it a little longer.

"What a knockout!" said the admiring young man.

She avoided Lorrimer as much as possible. But shortly before supper he danced her right out of the big room and into the indoor flower garden which was Mrs. Wynne's special hobby. This was a sort of modernized conservatory and perfectly charming. No mid-Victorian atmosphere of gleaming palms and cluttered ferns, but an octagonal room, which in daylight caught all the sun, and at night was indirectly lighted, with a synthetic sunlight, soft, golden, flattering.

The floor was of broken flags, moss grown. On one wall a small fountain tinkled into a stone basin. Flowers were everywhere, in boxes and pots, between the great windows gayly painted lattice-work covered the stone walls and by every angle of it, rooted in great stone pots. It was all green glamour, color, perfume and light, with the silver voice of the fountain speaking above it all. There were swinging couches in cool green chintzes, ash trays, curious modern ones and metal tables. There was, even, in one corner a very modern metal bookcase for the inclosing of cocktails. Mrs. Wynne had been teased by her friends "Well" said Mrs. Wynne, "it's a grand place to read in . . . why not a bookcase, then?"

Into this—little Eden, Lorrimer danced Mary Lou and sat her down without ceremony.

"You need a rest," he informed her. "And don't argue with you is not so good—two turns around on a turn and a half and some joint cuts in"

"Idiot?" she asked. Rusky, this bright afternoon. But the answer was almost mechanical.

He sat in the corner of the couch, leaning forward, his face clear upon his eager, ardent face, his strong hands clasped between his knees.

"No. Of course not. Very wise young man. But, after all, I don't have to look at that pink glass case, dearest," said Lorrimer . . . smiling.

She said nothing. Her heart was greatly moved and greatly troubled

"Can't you," he asked her, very gently, "can't you make up your mind? You—don't dislike me. I'm sure of that, somehow. Sometimes, I think you care a little. Surely you must. For all my caring there must be some return. You loved me once. Is it so hard to love me again?"

She made a little, indistinct murmur, put up one slender hand as if she interposed him, blindly, between herself and her fate. She loved him so very much. It was as if, in a scene, she had created him, bringing him back from the darkness in which he had stumbled. He was not only her lover therefore but her creation as if he had been her child. There was pain in her love for him than the beautiful shallows of physical attraction, more warm and sunny, sparkling and stimulating, now moving slowly, darkening, over the hidden rocks. There was tenderness and high hopes and ideals and a comradeship that had grown in these weeks in which they had been together; weeks in which they had come to know one another, not starting as most people do, from a basis of amusing ignorance, one of the other, but from a basis which was composed of their supposed pre-knowledge of each other . . . a background, as it were, of old loyalties and intimacies.

So, hard?" he asked again, as she did not speak.

Well, it would soon be over. Margaret would have decided tonight. Had, perhaps, decided by now. Whatever she decided, Mary Lou must go, must lose this Eden. She couldn't go on, putting him off, evading . . . She couldn't. She looked about her, a little wildly. The flowers sprang from their pots and jars of colored stone, the hyacinths she had come to hate, the lilies, the narcissus. Plants give out color and fragrance. The voice of the fountain spoke to her, sang in her blood. . .

She turned suddenly. Better a half truth, perhaps, better oh no! for him, for soon he'd know the truth and everything would seem lies when he looked back. Better for her, however, easing her heart, a very little. When he knew, he'd despise her, he'd think every word she had uttered a falsehood. So it didn't matter, did it, for the sake of a small cold comfort, she told him . . . that she cared Tomorrow—Lorrimer decides that whatever it is Mary Lou has to tell him he will love her just the same.

Cruelty to Kiss In-Law

By WINIFRED BLACK.

A MAN somewhere in the great wheat belt of the northwest, where winter is winter and blizzards are blizzards, divorced his wife the other day.

He charged her with extreme cruelty, and when he went to court, he told the Judge she forced him to kiss his mother-in-law good morning, and good night, every time the mother-in-law came to visit

Winifred Black

The Judge said, "umhum," or words to that effect, and told the man he must pay his wife $20 a week alimony the year round, summer and winter, blizzards or no blizzards, wheat crop or no wheat crop.

The man thinks that the Judge is out of place on the bench.

I'd like to hear the whole of that story, wouldn't you?

Why did the wife insist on her husband's kissing his mother-in-law?

Did the mother-in-law want to be kissed, or did daughter just want to make husband kiss mother—oh, just for luck, maybe, or to show that she could make him do anything she told him to do?

Should a man be obliged to kiss his mother-in-law, even if he is not in the kissing mood?

And aren't kisses of any sort a good deal a matter of mood?

Maybe mother-in-law hated son-in-law worse than he hated her—and in that case—

What a cruel thing it is, this whole mother-in-law business

But then they know about jealousy way back in the times of Solomon the Magnificent, don't it Solomon who said

"Love is as strong as death, and jealousy is as cruel as the grave"

I think Solomon would have sympathized with the man who had to kiss his mother-in-law whether he wanted to or not, don't you?

What's in Fashion for Men

By AMOS PARISH.

NEW YORK, May 12—Coolheaded men are the ones who are going to be fashionable this summer. And it won't be long now before they'll be seen everywhere you look.

What's new and different about straw hats this year? Just minor changes—but important nevertheless. Such as more porous straws, more flexible brims, more shapely crowns, more durable construction.

Boater Straws First

The hat you'll see most will be the good old boater straw, like the Prince of Wales wore last winter on his South American tour. (According to the newspapers, English straw hat factories have been flooded with orders ever since.)

This boater has medium brim, crown and band. The crown is slightly curved—about 3¼ or 3½ inches high. The straw is fine-foot sennit. The band is plain black

The brim—from 2¼ to 2¾ inches—is wide enough to shade the face and keep the nose from sizzling. But it's not so wide as to be out of proportion or make it hard to wear.

It's an easy hat for a man to look his best in—and still America's most fashionable hot-day hat.

Many men, of course, will prefer a colored band. But even the colored bands will be conservative—in stripes, self-woven designs and not-too-bright colors. Navy blue, brown, maroon, dark green and such colors will be better than gaudy reds, yellow, light greens and light blues.

Next in popularity to the boater is the panama. Even more men than last year will wear this soft, light, pliable hat. So many, indeed, that the sennits will have to look out for their laurels!

Optimo Panamas

Panamas will be best in the popular optimo shape. That, you'll remember is the familiar telescope with a little ridge running from front to rear. Bands will still be narrow and forms of medium height.

Panamas have the happy habit of conforming to your head. The more you wear them, the better they look. Besides, a good panama rarely wears like a duck and is as thoroughly sensible a hat as a man would want to wear.

Leghorn hats are still coming over from sunny Italy and many of them are being successfully reproduced right here. These rougher, yellow straws are good with both plain and piqueture bands (meaning the broad bands of pleated silk)

Years ago the Mohammedan chiefs made their slaves wear puggaree bands around their heads as a mark of servitude But when they noticed their slaves got along by in hot weather while they themselves perspired and expired, they adopted puggarees themselves.

Now these bands are worn on Leghorns by millions of men from India to the Yankee Stadium

Lightweight Felts

Light felts, weighing so little you hardly know you're wearing a hat at all, were very popular at the smart resorts last winter. They'll get a great reception this summer, in gray, tan, blue and green pastel shades.

Another comfortable head covering you'll see in cars, on golf courses and front porches is the crush hat of tweed, herringbone or checks

Two kinds—one made in eight pieces with a button on top. The other made in one piece with a plain flat top. And later on the golf crowns is going to see lots of these in linen to match knickers.

Hints From the Beauty Box

WHEN THE brain engine is in high gear, animated and ticking like a watch, the effect shows itself in the brilliancy of the eyes, the general expression of the face, the poise of the body. Sin who make no effort to make her self entertaining, interesting or pleasing, feel a deadly lack of pep, no matter how perfect her features, how symmetrical her treasures, how stylish her sartorial outline. Let the girl who takes no trouble to hide her boredom, take heed. There are too many of this type these days, pretty little scraps to whom life has nothing new to offer.

An exercise that is not easy but which is effective as a destroyer of fat cells collected on hips and thighs, is to place the feet under a radiator as one is extended on the back on the floor and to lift the upper portion of the body. Keep the hands at the sides. The return to the first position must be slow. There will be a hard pull of muscles that extend from waist line down toward the hips

New Medical Ideas to Fight Disease

By R. S. COPELAND, M. D.

THERE WAS leprosy in Egypt three or four thousand years before the beginning of the Christian era. A study of early leprosy appears to confine it to Egypt, the Orient and India In the 11th and 12th centuries the disease spread all over Europe

It attributed to the returning Crusaders.

Leprosy is rarely found in this country but sufficiently to warrant knowing about it. It is hailed by doctors a chronic infectious disease, caused by a specific germ

It attacks particularly the skin and the nervous system There may be thickening, ulceration or numbness of the skin Elevation and actual gangrene are common effects

Since the disease is a constitutional one, it may affect any organ or tissue of the body It runs a slowly progressive course.

For many centuries leprosy was believed to be caused by an evil spirit. It was greatly feared. All countries adopted measures for the control of the disease. Since little was known concerning the actual cause. Its victims were outcasts, living in leper colonies.

In 1871 a scientist, Dr Hansen described what he named "hansi lus lepraе." This agent is now universally accepted as the cause of the disease. Leprosy results from inoculation with this germ

Such factors as heredity eliminate the necessity of living, as well as occupation, are important in considering the development of this condition. But without the specific germ there can be no leprosy.

While it might possibly be transmitted by casual contact from one individual to another this is rarely the way it is acquired. Nevertheless, all precautions are taken against this possibility. It is for this reason that lepers, in certain stages of the disease, are not allowed to remain at home

In the Philippines, where many cases have been found the lepers are assembled on a remote island far from the mainland and visited only by officials and doctors This particular colony and the one in Louisiana are located in the ideal climate. There the patients receive adequate care and attention.

Great strides have been made in the prevention and cure of this terrible malady. There still remains a great deal to be learned At present, a study of the value of Chaulmoogra oil is being made This oil appears to have been used successfully in many cases of leprosy and may ultimately prove of untold value, if its true worth is not yet determined.

Says He's Too Poor to Wed

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

I met a very charming girl recently and I am in love with her I have to go to school and my financial circumstances are very bad. That is the reason why I don't ask her to be my girl. If you think my reason is insufficient, what would you say to explain the situation and to show my love for her?

Do you think it is proper to correspond with friend and young? also on the color paper?

C H

Dear C H: All over the United States there are hundreds and thousands of boys in the same plight—if it is a plight—as yours today. They're getting an education and have little or noth ing to spend on girls. Well what of it, unless the girls are gold diggers? Make a joke of it, and you'd like to go places, but you can't pay the prince. Any sensible girl will understand; if she doesn't, she's not worth while, anyway. One of my friends was a classmate of Woodrow Wilson in Princeton and Wilson, as the future President's loose change was negligible. He used to sit up all night trying to avoid paying the trifling fines at the library for keeping the books over the stipulated borrowing time

Some boys living on the narrowest margins today will be holding down the big jobs tomorrow Think how lucky you are to have this chance of getting an education. Pass up the gold diggers for girls of better quality.

No, I don't like your green paper—white, cream or gray would be better form.

Dangerous Discipline Indeed

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX

It seems I cannot solve my own problems I am 19 years old, attractive and a good dresser. I live with my family in the suburbs. My parents are very religious and keep both my sister and me under strict rules I do not object to all of this but do as they ask when at home. Away from home, I do as I please. I am disconcerted and lonesome. My home life is unpleasant. My mother had great ambitions for me which I never fulfilled She always throws it in my face. I never answer back and take it all in

READER.

Dear Reader—This letter might serve as a text to parents who are strict and where the daugh ters "away from home do as they please." The girl says she is "discontented and lonesome" and "I never answer back but take it all in." This kind of a home is built on a volcano and the eruption may come at any me

Right Way to Make People Acquainted

By MRS. BEECKMAN.

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN

1—Is it correct to ask a former boy friend, whom you have not seen for quite a while, to buy a ticket to your sorority dance? I mean, to call him on the telephone?

2—Is it correct, when you are at the dance to ask people you know to leave the young man you are with and go over to speak with you? I should also like to have him along and introduce him or two for the friends to come to you?

3—How should you go about getting dances for the young man you are with if he knows no one at the dance?

MISS L.

1—I can't feel that this would be a very appropriate thing to do. And I certainly would be sorry if you were to telephone him to buy a ticket. In my judgment we have no right to ask people who aren't close friends to buy tickets This is a matter of social tact. It should think stop their sensitiveness It's instinctive for us to [illegible] friends, for us to refuse to buy tickets And after all why should this boy have a ticket to your sorority dance, this boy whom you have not even seen for such a long time?

2—If you go to speak with other friends, ask your companion to come with you.

3—Introduce and introduce

Mrs.—Then why don't you turn off the radiator. This is the recipe for a dance!

EACH WEEK we have a great many requests for copies of the lesson sheets used in our Martha Lee Cooking School, here at Swiftthroop, and whenever we have an announcement to make, we always do so and then on you request if you enclose a loose 2-cent stamp for return postage Wyo about 20 left this week of the complete Company Dinner that was prepared and served in the school. RAILROAD RATE RAISE PLAN IS IMPORTANT

By FRANK H. MELOON

Movement of the American railroads to secure freight rate increases is led by Daniel Willard, astute Vermonter, president of the Baltimore & Ohio. Viewed from several angles, it is a very important movement. Washington observers say very convincing arguments, aside from revenue depreciation, must be offered to persuade the Interstate Commerce Commission to issue the proposed order.

Daniel Willard

The original plan was for an advance of 10 to 15 per cent in freight rates. Some of the railroad men think this would be too drastic. Publication of the resolution being filed by "President" Willard's committee will be awaited with intense interest in the premises, the fair guess is so far from being favorites and the leaders act as if they were in rather free supply on all sides. New York Central's 1931 first quarter deficit today will be taken in some quarters as an argument for higher rates.

Brokerage letters point out that bank clearings continue far below last year's. There is, of course, an explanation. Transactions in the stock markets have fallen off considerably everywhere and the sums of sales is minimized, the prices brought by shares call for reduced payments. These are reflected in the bank clearings.

Real proof that the automobile situation has continued improvement is found in registration figures. The first 12 days of April show for April show 42,160 new passenger cars registered, against 45,319 in March, an increase of 23 per cent.

Automobile accidents the first quarter of 1931 have taken 8500 lives in the United States, an increase of 9 per cent over a year before, says the Travelers' Insurance Co. The difference might well be due to the fact that many more cars are now subjected to follow their usual practice of buying a new car, and not all of them bought recently could not do it. Certainly attention should be paid at all times to keeping cars in good condition.

International Chamber of Commerce, meeting at Washington, adopted a resolution calling for 1 world conference on silver. The idea that such a conference should be held was advanced in this column several months ago.

That was when the steady drop in the price of silver had first become a recognized factor in bringing about additional depression and stock market declines.

The objection to such a conference then advanced was that it was unlikely to meet with the favor of Great Britain. British representation was considered highly important to any the hope. Lord Duke of Pavenham at Washington favored the conference idea and an objection would appear to have been removed if this Britisher is actually representative of his nation on the matter.

* * *

The value of world silver, running into the trillions of dollars, only a few years ago was about equal to that of all the world's gold. Now it has lost about 50 per cent of that value and the bulk of stock market "loss of purchase is to a considerable extent statistical. The reality of the statistical is quite sufficient, however, to justify the International Chamber of Commerce's consideration.

Today's News of Live Stocks in Wall Street

New York Central's break on a new low since 1928 following publication of its first quarter earnings statement, unsettled the railroad stocks this morning and the whole market turned reactionary as the session advanced. New York Central's report was disappointing in that it showed a $145,000 deficit in the first three months of the year against a net income of $8,471,000 in the corresponding period of last year.

Rails Give Ground, Lacking Support

Lacking support the active rails today gave ground easily. Union Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio, Atchison and Illinois Pacific led the common, followed by Pennsylvania, New Haven and Rock Island.

Allied Chemical Again Weak Spot

Paramount's Lower Dividend Foreseen

Paramount today showed minor recovery from dividend cut, which had been foreseen.

No Outstanding Copper Weakness

There was no outstanding weakness in copper shares today. Refined metal sold at 9 cents a pound in anticipation of an increase in the April report on refinery stocks of the metal on hand, but the big producers were reported out of the market.

Columbia Gas Under Pressure

It is noticeable that Columbia Gas & Electric common fails to participate in the recovery among utilities. Selling of this stock appears to be more than bear-pressure.

Wrigley Earnings Holding Up Well

One big New York and Boston institutional house says today:

Wrigley. "We understand the speculative interests who featured this stock at the end of January and again in February have been quite big buyers in the last three days. Of course, Wrigley's earnings are holding up exceptionally well and liberal yield is therefore entirely safe. We hear better than $5 talked for Wrigley in speculative quarters."

Buying in Grand Union Explained

The buying in Grand Union was for an important investment house, which has taken a very bullish long pull attitude on Grand Union, due to the fact that this company is the only important grocery chain which increased its sales, net profit margin of profit, number of stores and profits per store, in the year 1930. The 1931 business is understood to be standing up in excellent fashion.

Dairy Stocks Are Neglected

Borden, National Dairy Products and others in the group have been relatively neglected by traders recently, although in the past these issues had given an excellent account of themselves during rallies. In various circles it would not cause surprise if some of the brokerage who have been centering their attention on shares of "retail organizations" turned to the dairy group in the near future.

McKeesport Tin Pool Disbanded

McKeesport Tin Plate has been making selling since it became apparent that the bull pool which rushed the stock to around 103 earlier in the year had disbanded. Many who followed the issue on its upward movement were "stopped" out on the subsequent reaction. Now talk is heard that the prospects of a smaller consumption of cans will affect the earnings of the company, and estimates made by its bulls, while the stock was moving ahead, will have to be revised downward.

Gillette Doubles Market Value

Advance in Gillette Safety Razor stock has carried the issue up more than $140 per cent from the low price of 16, reached late in December. Of late its price improvement has been in the nature of a reflection, almost purely, of a pool operation, in which the bearish individual most active in the stock's long decline is reputed to have participated.

MORE CUTS IN MONEY RATES ARE NEAR

Washington, May 12 (INS)—Completion of the readjustment of the Federal Reserve Bank rediscount rates to a level of a half-per cent below that existing on March 1, since the end of last year, may be anticipated at any time, it was learned today.

Last week eight reserve banks, including New York, Philadelphia, Cleveland, Chicago, St. Louis, Minneapolis and Dallas, made a downward revision of their rates with a minimum of 1½ per cent at New York.

The banks at Atlanta and San Francisco on a 3 per cent level and Richmond and Kansas City on a 3½ per cent level. While Reserve Board officials decline to forecast what action will be taken by these banks, the general assumption was they would follow the lead of the Eastern institutions and drop their rates.

As yet there has not been sufficient time to measure how effects of the rediscount rate changes, the decreases having been made on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday of last week.

However, it was believed there might be some reaction in the international gold situation through the strengthening of the British pound and French francs.

Already some improvement has been noted. The extremely low rate in New York may check the inward flow of gold, which is held desirable from the standpoint of banks, as well as other nations.

STOCK PRICES ARE LOWER IN BOSTON

Stock prices were moved to moderately low levels in dull trading on the Boston Stock Exchange today. Rails were the hardest hit, with Pennsylvania dropping over a point to a new 1931 bottom.

Atchison slumped over 5 points. New Haven failed to make an appearance on the local board up to a late period. Hathaway A sagged 3 points and American Telephone was 2 lower.

Eastern Gas & Fuel common was a strong feature gaining 1½. Hygrade Lamp advanced 2½ points and New England Telephone was around a point higher.

Gillette dipped 1½, Edison 1 and United Shoe around 2 points. Stone & Webster was fractionally lower.

The following, representing in the aggregate 400,000 to 450,000 common shares of Quincy Market, Cold Storage & Warehouse Co., announce that they will augment the present management in the proxy contest for control of the company: Boston Safe Deposit & Trust Co., trustee, estate of John Donahoe; Clarence A. Moore, executor and trustee; Russo & Sons Co.; Pinder M. Tucker Co.

Hemphill, Noyes & Co., members of the New York Stock Exchange, with main office at 15 Broad street New York, announce that Ernest W. Soucy has been appointed joint manager of their Boston office at 50 Federal st. They also announce that Francis V. Logan and Thomas G. Wilder have become associated with their Boston office.

Receiver for Burns Bros. Is Denied

New York, May 12—Vice-Chancellor Fallon in Jersey City has denied application for receiver for Burns Bros., stating the company is not insolvent as charged.

FOX TO DELAY ITS MEETING

New York, May 12—Annual meeting of Fox Film stockholders postponed until May 15 will again be postponed, it was learned definitely by the New York American yesterday.

The next meeting date is now set for June 10. The original date of the annual meeting was April 15, but it was postponed until May 1. That meeting also was postponed until May 15, and this meeting also has been adjourned.

The delay in holding the annual stockholders' meeting is due largely to the fact that a reorganization plan covering the annual report for 1930, Harley Clarke, president of the company, objected to the accounting records accepted by the bankers in the recent financing.

These methods, he charged, made excessive depreciation charges. The company has retained Touche, Niven & Co., are now preparing the annual report.

Disbursements for Wages Show Gian

Youngstown, May 12—Wage disbursements here were 7.7 per cent higher in April than in March, totaling $1,038,287 and establishing a record for the year.

Total wage distribution through Youngstown banks in April was $5,513,909, against $5,121,622 in March. Slightly higher steel plant operations and improvement in other lines account for the increase.

$100,000,000 U. S. Offering Is Made

United States Treasury offers for sale $100,000,000 of Treasury bills in the usual series. One series totaling $50 000 000 will be dated May 18 and mature in 60 days and the other series in the same amount dated May 21 will mature in 91 days. The $100,000,000 will go to the retirement of $100,000,000 Treasury bills which mature May 18.

Trading Is Quiet for Bond Market

New York, May 12—Early activity in the bond market generally opened at the beginning of the second hour and trading continued quiet thereafter. Rising tendency appeared in the initial sales who disappeared. Railroad obligations were generally lower, following unfavorable earnings report of the New York Central for the first quarter of 1931.

Briggs Quarterly Report Is Issued

Briggs Manufacturing Co reports for quarter ended March 31 net of $43,731 after depreciation, federal taxes, etc., equivalent to two cents a share on 2,003,232 no par shares, against $760,373 or 38 cents a share in first quarter of 1930.

Whitney Again Head of Stock Exchange

Dividends

Chicago & Northwestern declared regular quarterly dividends of $1 on the common and $1.75 on the preferred, both payable June 30 to stock of record June 1.

* * *

Hiram Walker-Gooderham & Worts, Ltd., declared quarterly dividend of 12½ cents, payable June 15 to stock of record May 22, placing the stock on a 50-cent annual basis, against 31 previously.

STATE STREET SIDELIGHTS

State St brokers think the majority of the rise is having sentiment healthy in holding any gains from the low prices and still advise caution. While the technical position may be getting in strength because of an increase in the ranks of short sellers the selling in the market on the General Electric is disconcerting.

The better action of both N. E. Telephone and American Telephone is said to be due to the lifting of pressure by sellers for the account of a large estate. Brokers add they have no way of telling whether the selling has been completed or being held off until the blocks reach higher levels.

There have been many rumors of strong pool action in Radio calculated to carry the issue beyond 25. In some brokerage circles, however, it is reported these rumors are intended to help the unloading of a large block of stock by one who was formerly very bullish on the company.

Over-the-counter traders think that inclination in the dividend rates of some bank stocks are unavoidable. They point out that not only has the money market given scant opportunity for the profitable employment of funds through loans but the earnings from investments have been poor, all of which reduced earnings.

Electric Storage Battery, selling at a high yield which discounts the halving of thedividend, is thought to be well defiated. The company has paid dividends for 30 years without interruption. Its current position is bolstered by the winning of a $1,386,681 tax suit, and it is expected this will influence a generous payment.

CURB MARKET IS NARROW AND DULL

New York, May 12—The Curb market was inactive today, showing a heavy undertone but relatively small price changes.

Turnover in the utilities was very light and most of the favorites traded infrequently. The volume in Electric Bond & Share was fairly large, considering the dullness of the session, and the quotation shaded

It was apparent that buying throughout the list was on a scale down and that the trading policy of professionals was dominated by extreme caution

Oils meandered themselves aimlessly. Cities Service was a little heavy, but Vacuum explored fractionally higher ground. Standard of Indiana was firm. Other petroleum issues did virtually nothing.

High-priced specialties took unto themselves much of consequence elsewhere in that classification or in the industrials 43 shares of Aluminum Co. of America changed hands at a new low. Cord receded with Auburn and there was a fair turn in Graham-Paige. Packard, Wheeler and Summerous were among the semi-prime issues.

Don Gamble had made a new minimum in light selling. Chase gained many for which two points. Niagara Hudson Power was a trifle better at a minimum just about midway between the 3 new offerings. National Dairy and Beatrice Creamery.

Investment trusts were dull. Blue Ridge conversible preferred firmed a little. Goldman Sachs and Ungerleider Financial held steady.

BETHLEHEM'S BONUS O. K'D

Newark, N. J., May 12 (INS)—An order permitting the Bethlehem Steel Corporation to pay its officers and executives the normal bonus they are due to receive in accordance with a corporation custom which originated in 1911 was signed today by Vice-Chancellor John M. Backes.

The order provides that the recipients of the bonus shall post a surety bond to guarantee that the corporation shall be reimbursed for the money paid out in the event the courts finally determine that the bonuses are excessive or that they should not have been paid.

The order also provides that the bonuses are to be paid only to those holding fought in chancery court by 22 stockholders, who petitioned the court not only to enjoin the setup in the bonus system, but also to require officers and executives who have been its beneficiaries since 1911 to refund the money to the company so that it might go to the stockholders in dividends.

LATE TRADING BRINGS RALLY IN WALL ST.

New York, May 12—Late trading brought a rally to the New York Stock Exchange today.

Industrial and utility stocks recovered, reducing their eliminating earlier moderate losses, but railroad issues, week all day, made little progress on the upside.

COVERING BY BEARS

New York Central's extreme drop of 4¾ points to 92¾, the lowest since 1923, was partially made up. J. I. Case reflected short covering and rallied 4. U. S. Steel and American Can showed declines of 1¾.

Western Union rose more than 3. Trading was extremely quiet throughout the session and sales totaled about 1,500,000 shares.

Railway bonds were adversely affected taking some of the brightness out of the bond market.

Foreign news was also discouraging to bonds, especially the difficulties of the new Argentine government in putting its financial house in order, and report of embarrassment of a large Vienna bank.

CENTRAL IN RED

New York Central's first quarter showed a deficit of $144,912 after interest and charges, the first time in years that the railroad earner has slipped into the red. Advance estimates had been current for some time indicating that the road barely broke even, but actual publication of the figures was an excuse for selling.

General Motors April sales report was encouraging, showing domestic sales to consumers of 245,-663 cars, or roughly 3000 more than factory sales to dealers. The total to domestic consumers was 26 per cent over March, and only 8341 under April of last year. Total sales to dealers, including overseas and Canadian, were 301 cars above the total of April, 1930.

Advance figures on last week's crude oil output also are favorable, indicating a reduction of 109,-642 barrels in average daily output, the best curtailment in some time. The monthly copper statistics, however, were less favorable, showing small gains in stocks of both refined and blister metal in North and South America.

Chemistry company has failed to progress as rapidly as expected when the rediscount rate was cut last week. The $20,000,000 Chemical house committees unexpectedly failed to reduce the rate of interest paid on deposits by New York banks.

Call money, after renewing for the second day at 1 per cent, rose to 1¼. Out-of-town lenders pay a fee of ½ or 1 per cent for having their funds placed in call loans, and therefore found it more profitable to leave their money on deposit with New York banks.

Big Bill and Vinnie. They Were Pals Once. Now Bitter Enemies. ↕ Onrushing Cardinals. Tribe's Scalps Shaky. Somerville's Rooter.

MR. M'CARTHY SURE LIKES HIS SCRAPS

Tilden, Dempsey, Jones and Ruth,
Lords of Sportdom, that's the truth!
You can go back in days of Noah,
And find no equal to Sport's Big Four
Dempsey's star has come and gone,
Bill, Bob, Babe go rumbling on.
Emperor Bill, even to this day,
Over tennis holds his sway—
But Will must flash a frenzied fight,
To vanquish Vin on courts tonight!

ONCE UPON a time, a long time ago—now this isn't going to be any bedtime story—Bill Tilden and Vinnie Richards were the best of pals, even as you and I. Boston tennis enthusiasts remember how Big Bill, taking little Vinnie, who was a cute little cuss with his round baby-like features and engaging smile, by the hand led his youthful protege on to the old Longwood courts. They came off the courts double champions of the little old U. S. A. Boy, oh boy, what a doubles pair Bill and Vinnie made! Later they won at Chestnut Hill and all over the tennis circuit. In those days they were Damon and Pythias, or shall we say father and son, or better still the older and younger brother. But that's all past and put behind. Bill is an old man now as far as sports go and little Vinnie is a staid and sedate family man with a beautiful wife and two lovely children. Vinnie is still the same good natured, genial smiling chap he was when he first came to Longwood, but the boyishness has gone from that round smiling face and there is a set and sternness to his features.

Tennis was just a game to little Vinnie Richards when he first came to Longwood. Now it is a business and his means of gaining a livelihood. It is a business for Tilden, too. The one-time amateur pals now are deadly rivals. Just now they are clinched in a battle for the world's professional tennis championship. The first round was fought in New York last saturday. Long Bill and little Vinnie will answer the gong again in Boston Garden tonight, and tennis fur and feathers certainly will fly.

THE ODDS favor Big Bill. Tilden's fighting blade has been whetted by many sharpening with frequent competition. The whole series will be held indoors because Dempsey of the Courts at a recent edge. Richards' home is dotted with acts of competition and hunted by teaching. Even a Master slumps off from playing day by day with tyros and beginners as Fred Richards used to do. Before the end of the series Richard may strike his fighting gait. Vinnie is such a lit wizard that when he gets going on high gear he is likely to trample the against Tilden. But series in New York may have put Vinnie on edge. Let it a few more matches would be required before Richards get the timing, distance and co-ordination of eye and arm mind and muscle to put him back at top tennis form.

Those on rushing Cardinals, Old Sarge Street in command, Inside Braves Field tomorrow and the scalp locks of the Braves already are beginning to feel itchy. All the signs along the trail are that the Braves will be as bald as billiard balls when the series is over.

Jim Bottomley, who the year says last season said was all through apparently is only just beginning. Jim is pasting the old apple at close to a .400 clip. Frankie Frisch, erstwhile Fordham flash; Taylor Douthit, Georgie Watkins, Jimmy Wilson and Charlie Gelbert all are hot fires and pleasing like mad. "Pepper" Martin—did you ever know a fellow by the name of Martin who wasn't called "Pepper"?—is running so wild that Chick Hafey, supposedly the Cardinals' best hitter, still is warming the bench.

YOUNG Wild Bill Hallahan, old Jess Haines, just as old Burleigh Grimes and Flint Rhem, the Bad Boy, make up Street's Big Four on the mound. Lindsay Johnson Derringer from the International-Stout from the Texas League and Tony Kaufman, the cast-off from Phillies, Cubs and Giants, all have twirled good ball when called upon

As we write this the Cardinals have won 14 out of 17 games. They took six out of seven from the Cubs, supposedly their closest rival Street claimed a clean sweep and protested the one game lost but President Heydler decided in favor of the Cubs. If the Cardinals keep up their rush it looks as if the N. L. race would be over before July 4. The law of averages would hint it was about time the Cardinals stubbed their toe. Perhaps it will be over the Braves.

RETCHA there was plenty of wise cracks when Paddy Creedon met his new boss, Bullet Joe Bush of Allentown, former Red Sox and Athletic pitcher . . . Bullet Joe better not try to out-talk Paddy. Former Mayor Eddie Quinn of Cambridge is a great fan . . . Be it baseball, boxing or football, you'll find Eddie right up front . . . But if you want a real dyed-in-the-wool boxing fan it's "Charcoal" McCarthy, the Charcoal King of Somerville . . . He fights every fight in his grand stand chair . . . Watch him in the Garden next Friday night He'll let go more swings than Mello and Brouillard

The first thing Charlie Wilson did on reporting back to Rochester, where he was banished by cruel Judge Fuchs, was to knock a homer over the right field fence, scoring Jordan ahead . . . Judge Ralph Reeve of Lynn and Judge Kenneth Nash of Quincy both are good golfers and of the type the Weather Man can't keep down . . . Speaking of the Weather Man, Eddie Mack is calling him some awful names . . . Don't blame Eddie, but isn't it a trifle early to slap outdoor boxing? . . . Ben Levine, the swimming promoter, is having things easy these days . . . It will be another month before the swimming season starts . . . George Grimm scarcely can wait to get a peak of those new bathing suits . . . It all depends on the Swettie inside of 'em.

Weather Man, Weather Man, have a heart!
You're cheered us down with your Waterloo t
Hour in brk, to cold or blow
Can Eddie show his boxing show?

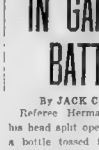
Just when Lawson Robertson was telling how his Penney quartet could break the world's one-mile relay record Stamford's flying four up and beat the Red and Blue to it . . . 3.12 5-8! When!—That is going to be a mark to shoot at! . . . The four fliers averaged 48 5-10 seconds a quarter . . . A whole team of Don Fleets . . . Tom Brady, Forest Hills undertaker, has discovered golf is good for the health . . . Bobby Taylor, right wing of the Cubs, has turned to house painting . . . But when he gets three seconds off you'll find him on the links . . . If golfing interferes with his painting Bobby should cut out his painting.

WOLFE HURT IN GARDEN BATTLE

By JACK CONWAY

Referee Herman Wolfe had his head split open when hit by a bottle tossed from the first balcony at the Boston Garden after he declared Tiny Roebuck, Indian heavyweight wrestler, winner on a foul over Hans Steinke of Germany following 16 minutes and 32 seconds of furious battling.

The bottle was a half pint size and when examined by the police was found to contain traces of liquor. The bottle traveled a distance of 60 feet before it crashed to the ring. It bounced sharply and hit Referee Wolfe on the right side of the head. It opened a big gash from which the claret flowed freely.



Jack Conway

Despite his injury, Wolfe refused to leave the ring until order was restored. Excited persons in the ringside crowd shouted for the referee to rush to a doctor. He merely took out a handkerchief, tried to stem the flow of blood. Wolfe leaned over the press row and said to his wife:

"Just another wound stripe!"

I remarked that the bottle tosser was a dirty sport and should receive harsh treatment from the authorities for doing it.

"I would like to lay hands on the bird myself," said Wolfe. "I'd give him the Dan Dowling anklehold ever received."

It was determined that the bottle was thrown by a boy on the first balcony. The police are today trying to determine the identity of the offender. If apprehended, the lad in court will be jailed into court provided of course Referee Wolfe don't cotch up with him first. In such an event, his first trip will probably be to a hospital.

St. Louis baseball fans used to hurl pop bottles at the umpires but they finally got tired of this dangerous pastime.

Roebuck Is Victor in Dramatic Finish

Roebuck won over Hans Steinke after a tussle that was jammed with thrills. Referee Wolfe warned the men when they received their instructions that they must adhere to the rules of wrestling.

The boys apparently didn't hear what the referee said for as soon as they swept into action they started to exchange punches. Roebuck, a former boxer, had the advantage in the hitting stuff.

Steinke then secured a toe hold and lifted Tiny's left leg in the air. He then placed Roebuck's back on the canvas and amused himself stamping on the Indian's face. The sad part of the entire affair was that Roebuck was not in a position where he could leave a single punch fly. So the poor Indian!

When Roebuck broke the hold Steinke picked him up and hurled him over the ropes. When he got back into the ring Tiny took a couple of healthy socks at his rival.

Steinke kept at close quarters as much as possible. In this way, he avoided considerable punishment.

Steinke finally slipped on a headlock and dropped Roebuck to the canvas. He dropped his hold and Roebuck, as he came to a standing hold. Roebuck was in great pain. Referee Wolfe ordered Steinke to break the hold. When he refused to do so the referee awarded Roebuck the bout on a foul.

Referee Gets Mixed Up in Free-for-All Jam

Then the excitement began. Wolfe's head was full of stars and he was especially quiet he broke the hold. Hans [illegible] Wolfe [illegible] on the left [illegible] Referee Wolfe [illegible] Roebuck [illegible] Wolfe was [illegible] and [illegible] Wolfe was [illegible] wrestlers apart were no help whatsoever.

Perhaps the bottle was intended for one of the wrestlers, but the referee was the one to get hit by it. If the bottle had not struck the canvas first Wolfe might have suffered a fatal injury.

Pat O'Shocker of Salt Lake City furnished a surprise when he won from Wladek Zbyszko of Poland in 13 minutes, 32 seconds, with an inside crotch body lift.

Farrell on Golf

By JOHNNY FARRELL
(Former American Open Champion)
As told to ALAN GOULD of the Associated Press

I have been asked a number of times to select the best shotmakers in golf; not purely from the standpoint of individual scoring ability, but on the basis of style and consistent results.

It would be an ideal round, a [illegible] on men if each shot could be played from tee to green by the following men:

Driver—Bobby Jones.
Brassie—Tommy Armour
Spoon—Joe Turnesa
Driving Iron—Bobby Cruikshank
No. 2 Iron—Gene Sarazen.
No. 3 or 4 Iron—Leo Diegel.
Mashie—Willie Macfarlane.
Mashie Niblick—Walter Hagen.
Spade—Macdonald Smith.
Chip Shots—Horton Smith.
Putter—Bobby Jones.

Some of these selections are difficult to make, the margin of difference being very close, but I think you will find in each case I have good reasons for my choice.

Jones is long as well as accurate off the tees. He is no longer, if a long on the average as hitters such as Craig Wood, Ed Dudley, Gene Sarazen and Leo Diegel, but he can hit my tee shots on this team.

Bobby will do on the green also although I might like to take a few of the long putts myself, if Jones wanted to rest up for his next tee shot.

You hear more about Armour's iron play but he is better with his long wood. He gets more out of a brassie shot than any other professional I know.

Hagen always has been a master with the mashie niblick. He has extreme confidence with this club.

Horton Smith's best scoring last winter was due to his fine chipping shots. These saved him many times when he was having trouble with other clubs.

HARVARD PLAYS W. AND M. TODAY

Harvard will attempt to reverse an early season defeat when it opposes the strong William & Mary nine at Soldiers Field at 4 o'clock this afternoon. The Crimson nine outplayed a brilliant brand of baseball in its victory over Pennsylvania last Saturday, and Coach Fred Mitchell believes that his charges can turn back the Southerners this afternoon.

Warren Page, Harvard southpaw from Fairhaven, will shoulder the pitching duties for the Crimson, while either Carlton Sundin, Carter White or Pat Harkins will be the mound selection for the band from Dixie.

Mat Referees Need Iron Headgear

—By MYLES T. McSWEENEY—

It took a strong arm to leave that bottle which struck referee Wolfe on the head at the Garden wrestling show last night.

And a weak mind.

The thrower probably excused himself because he was moved to the deed by spirits. Bottled.

Bottle throwing was never regarded as good manners. Even when the target was a blind umpire.

We ought to have prohibition.

If the government can't stop the sale of liquor, there ought to be another law.

PICK U. S. DAVIS CUP TEAM

New York, May 13 (AP)—Frank J. Shields, Sidney B. Wood, Jr., Gregory Mangin and Clifford Sutter today were named by the United States Lawn Tennis Association as the Davis Cup team to meet Canada in the finals of the North American zone play.

Shields and Wood with Wilmer Allison, of Austin, Tex., comprised the team that defeated Mexico in the first round play May 1, 3 and 4. They are both from New York.

Mangin, of Orange, N. J., and Sutter, the intercollegiate champion, of New Orleans, have never played in the international competition, although Mangin was a member of last year's squad.

The four players are second, fourth, fifth and sixth in the national ranking in the order of their naming to the squad. John Hope Doeg, the national champion and number one, of Newark, N. J., was not a candidate for the team.

Vincent Richards will be in charge of Vernon Prentice of New York, as captain playing captain.

CAPTAIN OF YALE CREW OUSTED

New Haven, Ct., May 12—James Gamble Rogers of New York, Yale crew captain, will not row in either the varsity or junior varsity races in the derby day races on the Housatonic river next Saturday as the result of a shakeup in the oarsmen.

The shakeup came after a series of experiments which followed the defeat of Yale by Columbia in the Blackwell Cup races at New York on May 2.

Etheridge Currie, No. 3, and Bill Gillespie, coxswain, were also moved down from the varsity boat and will be placed in the second boat.

Manuel and Childs today were promoted from the junior varsity boat to the varsity crew and will be in the shell on Saturday.

Goodbody, formerly No. 2 in the varsity boat, has been changed with Esselyn, formerly No. 4.

Sam Gillespie, who has been coxswain in the junior varsity shell, has moved to the same position in the varsity boat.

Varsity—Goodale stroke, Anthony, Manuel, Knoll, Goodbody, Childs, Esselyn, Foster bow, S. Gillespie coxswain.

Junior varsity—Shepard stroke, Goodyear, Garnsey, Currie, Morthe, Urquhart, Cussler, Meyer bow, W. Gillespie coxswain.

This is the reason for Gillette's overwhelming leadership—and its world-wide acceptance as the standard of razor blade quality. —Gillette is unequalled for shaving comfort and convenience. Every stroke with this blade is sleek and sweet—almost incredibly cool and pleasant. ARGONNE SHOW PUT OVER UNTIL TOMORROW

COLD CAUSES POSTPONING OF BOUTS

By RINGSIDE.

Johnny Indrisano of East Boston and Sam Bruce of Buffalo must wait until tomorrow night to stage their ten-round fight at Braves Field. The fight show, slated for tonight, has been postponed until tomorrow because of cold weather.

Indrisano and Bruce met in one of the two feature bouts of the fight show put on by Eddie Mack of the Agonne A. A. In the first 10-stanza scrap of the card Steve Halaiko of Buffalo will make his first professional ring start when he faces Baby Jack Renault of Cambridge.

As a pro, Steve has gone over big. He recently tossed Sammy Mandell, former world's lightweight champion, for a loss. Mandell's skill and experience wasn't enough to hold Halaiko at bay.

Renault is one of the best of the newcomers among the local lightweights. He's aggressive, hits well with both hands and has been winning regularly. In his last start, he won from Eddie (Kid) Sullivan of Walpole at the Arena.

Indrisano and Bruce in Another Ten

Sammy Bruce of Buffalo will also appear in the Braves Field show tomorrow. He will have Johnny Indrisano of East Boston as an opponent wh proves they are not picking 'em soft for Bruce. Indrisano is one of the world's leading welterweights. He has decisions to his credit over some of the best men in his boxing division.

Indrisano is fired with the desire to win the welterweight title. Eddie Mack has opened negotiations with Ray Alvis for a bout between Young Jack Thompson, world's welterweight champion, and Indrisano.

Tommy Flynn of Charlestown, who is handling Indrisano in New England for Billy Duffee, says he has already agreed to terms. It is merely a case of Mack being able to convince Alvis to sign on the dotted line.

Tomorrow night's double windup will be supported by five fourrounders. These four-round boys have a habit of producing action. Perhaps it is because they only get $50 each.

COAST BOXER ON GARDEN CARD

Michele Bonaglia, Phil Buccelo's light heavyweight, has been signed to meet Andy Mitchell of California in the semi-final to the ten-round tussle between Al Mello and Lou Brouillard at the Boston Garden on Friday night.

Bonaglia has shown a couple of times at Providence where he did well. Mitchell will be remembered as the youngster who gave Jim Maloney a tough scrap at the Garden.

Lud Abella, Filipino boxer who gave Jake Zeramby a hard battle, will take on Billy Lynch of Providence.

Mello and Brouillard are training at Kelley & Hayes' Gym at different hours. The rival welterweights are in good condition. Each expects to have no trouble weighing in at 147 pounds.

MORSTONE OUT OF DERBY

New York, May 12 (AP)—Clarence Buxton, trainer for Benjamin Block, today announced he would not start Morestone, son of Morvich, the 1932 winner, in the Kentucky Derby at Churchill Downs Saturday.

"Mr. Block was inclined to start the horse," Buxton said, "despite his hard race in the mud Monday but after a conference early today he decided to withdraw him.

"Morstone came out of his race yesterday in good shape but as he is a green horse, having run only three races, it was decided not to risk him to the Derby. He will be pointed for the Withers mile at Belmont."

Morstone was beaten yesterday in the Ackroyd Handicap by Beau Jolie, a 9 to 1 shot, over a distance of a mile and 70 yards. He carried 124 pounds, 14 more than the horse that beat him, but two less than he would have to carry in the derby at a mile and a quarter.

Jack Conway Picks Steve Halaiko and Indrisano to Win

Jack Conway today picked Steve Halaiko to win from Baby Jack Renault and Johnny Indrisano to dispose of Sammy Bruce in their bouts at Braves Field tomorrow night.

"I liked the way Halaiko punched when in the amateurs a few years ago," said Jack. "This youngster looks like the real thing. He proved his class when he recently won from Mandell.

"I think Indrisano can lick Bruce or any of our other noble welterweights. He has a world of boxing class."

Conway's 1931 record follows:

Fred Hoey Day at Wigwam June 20

Secretary Ed Cunningham of the Braves has announced that Saturday, June 20, will be observed at Braves Field as Fred Hoey Day, in honor of the popular and well-known baseball broadcaster.

It will be a double-header with St. Louis, which in itself will be considerable of an attraction. Originally the Braves were due to play the Cards on the 18th, the day after the holiday, but that game has been moved up to the 20th for the special occasion.

CLEVELAND SITE OF TITLE BOUT

Cleveland, May 12—The Max Schemeling-Young Stribling bout for the heavyweight championship of the world will be held here at the new Municipal Stadium on July 3.

This was definitely determined last night when the city officials and the Madison Square Garden Corp. of Ohio signed the contract.

Although Cleveland had been picked as the site of the bout originally, there was a possibility of the bout going elsewhere, as the Cleveland city officials and the Garden had not been able to come to an agreement on the amount of rent for the use of the stadium.

Before the signature formalities, city council adopted a resolution waiving the boxing commission's usual 6 per cent cut in receipts of boxing matches in favor of a flat guarantee of $5000. The promoters will pay $20,000 for use of the stadium and split even with the city on concession receipts, in addition to building 20,000 or more field seats to revert to the city after the match.

B. U. Nine Will Wind Up Season Monday

The Boston University baseball team will swing into its last full week of the 1931 season tomorrow when it meets Middlebury at Nickerson Field, Riverside.

The Terriers play Mass. State at Riverside on Friday, and a return game with the Jumbos of Tufts on Saturday. They close the season next Monday when they face Worcester Tech at Worcester.

So far this year the Scarlet and White nine has won four and lost five games. Ronald "Buck" Wafer of Woburn pitched six of the nine battles, breaking even, winning three and losing three.

Due to the inclement weather, the W. G. A. matches were postponed yesterday and will be played off one week from today. After yesterday's layoff, the W. G. A. players will be out in force for the second handicap medal play tournament of the season today at the Winchester C. C.

Donald Vinton and Searles Reed teamed up cleverly during the morning round yesterday at Wollaston, but they were both off form in the p. m.

Johnny Farrell, a former U. S. open champion now admits that the axe and lighter ball is hard to control in a wind. A week ago Johnny was of the opinion that the new ball was ideal.

A move is underway to have the P. G. A. championship played in New England this season.

Tom Dean, the Myopia professional, believes that P. W. Whittemore is capable of holding his own with any golfer in the game in an 18-hold match. Tom has the greatest respect for Whittemore's game and as he was with him regularly, he is in a position to pass judgment.

Now it is up to the Central District to check Southern's spurt to the W. G. A. team match championship. Southern and Central will clash at the South shore C. C. tomorrow and the match will not only be the most important of the season but one well worth witnessing.

George Ford, brother of John, the well known Blue Hill C. C. professional is assisting Bill Delaney at the Needham C. C. this season.

Phil Finlay will not be able to play in the Mass open at Worcester. Finlay has three final examinations to take at Harvard during the two days on which the open will be played. Incidently, this same Mr. Finlay raced home in 31 at Hanover last Saturday in the Dartmouth-Harvard match.

John J. Fitzgerald is most enthusiastic over the improved condition of the Oyster Harbors course. All of the fairways were topped dressed last fall and nine holes were piped, with the result that the course is in wonderful condition this spring. The remaining nine holes will be piped before the end of the month, and Oyster Harbors will take its place with the finest layouts in New England.

GOOD GOLF

By CHESTER HORTON
Golf's Greatest Teacher

Some small points about the golf swing do not lose importance because of the obscurity. The theoristic shift of weights falls into this definition. To attain good golf I would say it would be entirely what is important that you be able to dispose of the theory of weight - shifting for exactly what it is. Understanding it correctly, you then could use it or disregard it, according to your individual experience. There are no hard and fast rules with regard to the swing. Close analysis must inform you that you have no more weight on your right leg at the top of the back swing, than rested on that leg in your address, since after all your weight is a given total and under no circumstances does your weight increase as your swing progresses. How could it? The mere thinking about weight-shifting takes your golfing thought away from the ball, where it must be while your swing is made.

RICHARDS AND TILDEN PLAY AT GARDEN

Bill Tilden and Vin Richards meet in the second match of their series for the world professional tennis championship tonight at Boston Garden.

The Tilden-Richards battle is scheduled to get under way about 9:15. The evening's action starts at 8:30 when Frank Hunter and Emmet Pare engage in singles.

Tonight, following Richards's attempt to square accounts with Big Bill, Vinnie will team with Bobbie Seller, recent west coast star convert to professional ranks, against Tilden and Frank Hunter in doubles.

Tilden, in rare form after his harrowing competition with Ja. Karel Kozeluh, Czech player, who claimed the world's pro title and lost it to Big Bill, is confident that he will again take Richards' measure.

Curley Trying to Make "Pro" of Cochet

Chicago, May 12 (US)—Henri Cochet, world's premier amateur tennis player, may yet turn pro.

At least that is the belief of Jack Curley, promoter of the Tilden-Kozeluh and Tilden-Richards professional matches.

Curley, in a telephone conversation from New York, advised the Chicago Stadium management that he had delegated Georges Carpentier, former French boxing idol, to visit Cochet in Paris and obtain his consent to a series of matches for the world's pro championship.

Cochet's determination to stay in the amateur ranks is weakening, in Curley's belief and Carpentier's offer of an assertedly large sum may see the French Davis Cup star sign to battle the winner of the current Tilden-Richards series of matches.

HORNSBY RECONSIDERS; WON'T BENCH WILSON

SHOWING OF CUBS O. K., SAYS RAJAH

By LES CONKLIN

New York, May 12 (INS)—Rogers Hornsby, dynamic manager of the Chicago Cubs, today reconsidered plans of benching Hack Wilson, the slugging center fielder, who led both leagues in hitting home runs last season but is batting only .270 this year.

"Hack will be out there today and every day," said the Rajah this morning before leaving for the Polo Grounds for the last game of the current series with the Giants this afternoon.

Hornsby admitted, however, that he was satisfied with the showing of the Cubs thus far and was especially pleased at the quality of pitching he has been getting. He thinks that the Cardinals and the Giants are the clubs the Cubs will have to beat to win the pennant.

Hornsby qualified his statement, however, with the declaration that he would not hesitate to juggle his players around to strengthen the club.

"If I do anything to win," he said, "Gabby Hartnett has caught every game so far this season and deserves a rest. I plan to use him only against southpaws for awhile and let Earl Grace and Zach Taylor do some work behind the bat.

"Stephenson's bad leg is giving him some trouble and Charley Grimm is suffering from lumbago. I plan to use Johnny Moore, our rookie from Los Angeles, in Steve's place in the outfield now and then and to let Fonts Blair substitute for Grimm at first base until Charley's back gets better.

Wilson to Play in Left and Center

"When Moore is used in the outfield he will be shifted in center and Wilson will be shifted to left field. Johnny is a center fielder and does not feel at home in left."

Hornsby said he hoped to get back into the game himself soon, perhaps today. He pulled a tendon in his leg the other day and was unable to bend his knee Sunday, but the injured member was much better today.

As soon as the Rajah gets back into the game Blair will be shifted to first base and Grimm will be given a rest.

Hornsby is so eager to win that only a couple of defeats separate the Willies. The Cubs were going like a house afire until they hit New York and were leading the league in batting. But two defeats at the hands of the Giants, with the Bruins only collecting four hits in each contest, so depressed the Rajah that he considers the club to be in a terrific batting slump.

Hornsby Doesn't Read the Newspapers

Rogers admits he never reads the newspapers and he appeared flabbergasted when the writer showed him the weekly batting averages, which revealed that Wilson and Hornsby were hitting .290 until they came to New York Saturday.

"I thought they were batting about .200," he said. "One trouble with us is that we have been hitting into too many double plays. English is playing fine ball and so is Bell.

"Len is batting only .360, but he has driven in more runs than Wilson. Of course Hack isn't doing so terribly bad, but he had such a wonderful year last season that everybody expects him to knock the cover off the ball."

NO BENCH FOR HACK, SAYS RAJAH

ROGERS HORNSBY HACK WILSON

THEY LOOK FRIENDLY

And they are friendly, according to Hornsby. He announced today that he had reconsidered his decision to bench Wilson, who hasn't been hitting well. "Hack can and will play every day," stated Rogers. Rajah may shift his players, but Hack is the fair-haired child on the Cubs' roster. And Hornsby will keep him busy, in center and left field.

DIAMOND DUST

By JOE CASHMAN

The surprising Red Sox move into Detroit today to open a three-game series. If the dope means anything, which it probably doesn't, Horace "Hod" Lisenbee will try to make the Tigers look silly chasing his butterfly ball, while Undertaker Waite Hoyt will attempt to inter the Collins crew.

The Sox arrive in the Jungle boasting of a clean sweep over Cleveland, rain having halted the fourth game of that engagement after they had taken the Indians into camp on three successive afternoons.

The Fenway flock used to be thankful for postponements of games with first division outfits, but no longer. It was Cleveland that was glad and Boston that was sad over yesterday's ball.

Five of the eight Sox regulars who will start against the Tigers this p. m. are hitting over .300 and the average of the eight is .310. That's why the team is doing so well.

Charlie Wilson, erstwhile Braves third sacker, celebrated his return to Rochester by hitting a home run on his first trip to the platter. He may cause the Tribal management to regret sending him back before the season is over. Yet, that's a gamble every big league club must take now and then.

Howard Ehmke's hopes of returning to the big leagues aren't likely to be realized. The former star flinger of the Tigers, Red Sox and Athletics emerged from a year's retirement to pitch for a New York semi-pro team a few days ago and was found for 12 hits and as many runs before he was relieved in the fifth inning.

The poor showing of the Brooklyn Robins can be explained in one word—southpaws. Of the 15 defeats the Bobbs have suffered, 11 have been at the hands of portsiders.

Rogers Hornsby claims that the reason his Cubs look so slow on the base path is because they hit the ball so fast to opposing infielders. There's a new one.

The longest winning streak of season ended yesterday when the Phils topped the St. Louis Cardinals, 2 to 1, after the champions had captured eight games in a row. The combination of Pitcher Fitzsimmons and Outfielder Chuck Klein proved too strong for the Streetmen to overcome. Klein hit a home run with a mate on, while Collins proved superior to Wild Bill Hallahan, southpaw ace of the Mound City outfit.

Somerville Boxer Wins Salem Bout

Gordon Faulkner of Somerville was a unanimous decision over Al Gellette of New Bedford in the main eight-round bout of the Arena A. A. show last night at the North st. rink, Salem. It was a fast fight, with the Somerville boxer having the shade.

In the eight-round semifinal, Tony Acquaro of Lynn won the verdict over Horatio Velha of Gloucester. Cummy Vitale of Beverly scored a technical knockout over Leo Kase of Chelsea in the fourth round. Joe Jankowski of Salem outpointed Gene Lavoie of Danvers in a four-round preliminary. Napoleon Proulx of Taunton won the decision over Charlie Pelcaro of Medford in a six-round bout.

SONNY DEFIES MAT STARS

Gus Sonnenberg, most colorful figure in the wrestling game, who clashes with Count Zarynoff in a finish bout, best two falls out of three, at the Arena, on Thursday night, under the direction of Paul Bowser, today drifted all of the so-called headliners.

"When I held the title," said Sonny, "I took on all-comers until finally beaten by Ed George on the coast. I have never attempted to offer an alibi for that defeat, if don't like birds who cry baby when beaten.

"All I wish to say is that I am in splendid physical condition and confident I can beat any man in the world. I have licked George once and will repeat if we meet again. I have tossed Strangler Lewis seven times. He has no defense for my flying tackle.

"I have beaten Henri Diglane, conqueror of Lewis, three times, I stand ready to knock off George Lewis and Diglane, provided I get by Zarynoff on Thursday night.

"The Count is a flashy wrestler. It took George 1 hour and 36 minutes to throw him. I'm shooting to beat George's mark."

Nick Lutze will oppose Leo Hyatt of New Hampshire in the semifinal, which will have a 45-minute limit.

CHANGE IN YALE POLICY URGED

New Haven, Conn., May 12—The Yale Daily News, student publication, urges a reorganization of the athletic management by which the present board of athletic control would be reduced from 24 members to a small group over whom would be the director of physical education.

The News said it was in accord with the principles involved in the announced reorganization of athletic administration at University of Pennsylvania and Columbia University, and suggested need of similar action at Yale.

The News said the office of physical director at Yale "is greatly abused and disrespected by the board of control, both as a group and as individuals, by the undergraduates and alumni alike." It is said that in course of years and through tradition, "various related branches have usurped the power which constitutionally belonged to the physical director."

Rick Ferrell Has .706 Batting Average

St. Louis, May 12 (AP)—Catcher Rick Ferrell's bat, in the past not regarded very potent, has been working overtime lately. In the St. Louis Browns' last five games Rick has set a pace of .706 with 12 hits in 17 times at bat.

Ferrell has played in every one of the Browns' games. Although hitless in six of them, one of which was a no-hit performance by his brother Wesley of the Cleveland Indians, Rick has an average for the season of .371.

ALBERT JOSEPH VAN CAMP
Red Sox outfielder.
Born, Moline, Ill., Sept. 7, 1904.
Weight, 178 pounds.
Height, 6 feet.
Bats and throws right handed.

He stepped off the sand lots onto the Des Moines club in the Western League back in 1928 and played first base, third base and the outfield during his first season.

In '29 he played the outfield and last season he played both the garden and first base under the direction of John "Shano" Collins, his present manager with the Sox.

He hit .344 last season, making 161 hits for a total of 265 bases, including 28 doubles, 11 triples and 17 home runs. The Sox purchased him from Des Moines on Collins' recommendation.

He is now playing left field for the Sox and has been one of the league's leading batters since the race started.

He lives in Davenport, Ia.

The varsity nine will meet the strong Vermont team, which has had a successful season so far. Although Jeff Tesreau had not announced the man who will start in the box it is expected that Way Thompson, the second sophomore ace will face the Green Mountaineers.

The freshman team, which has won all of its games, will meet the St. Anselm's club here in Hanover. Miller is the outstanding yearling pitcher and with such men as Frank Spain, former Exeter star, to back him up, the team is hanging up a pretty good record.

MRS. GIFFORD SHOOTS A 97 IN W.G.A. TILT

By BILL GRIMES

With about one-half of the contestants accounted for in the second W. G. A. open handicap medal play tournament at the Winchester Country Club, Mrs. S. M. Gifford and Mrs. E. S. Kelley, both of whom represented Oakley, were the only players to break 100.

Mrs. Gifford turned in a 97 which was two strokes better than her colleague, Mrs. Kelley. As both carried 12 handicaps, Mrs. Gifford retained her two-stroke advantage in the net results.

Mrs. Bowen Tufts, South Shore; Mrs. R. A. Skinner, Bear Hill, and Mrs. C. G. Lund, Hatherly, were tied for third place with net 80.

The field numbering 90 was one of the largest that ever turned out for a W. G. A. open event.

tells then, as if to gloss over the thickening, moist-lipped faces that had begun to lean out of the human wall around them.

"Come on, Jennifer, let's get out of here. I need a drink."

"Need seven drinks!" They backed off without much disturbance, moving slidingly and unnoticed along the tiles; moving hand in hand and head reflecting steps; moving slidingly toward the grove above the grotto of the swimming pool.

Patches of moonlight covered the floor of the grove like lily-pads. Water, skedaddling down the rocks to feed the pool, was the only sound.

He stared, with his head to her lap, and a patch of pale sky that reminded him of his star-sapphire studs.

"What say?"

"You're not listening."

Slippery as an Eel

"I can feel your voice. It makes darling little vibrations."

"I begged you not to get tight, Berry."

His eyes fluttered heavily and closed as he began tumbling out on to the moss for the frosted quart bottle and two glasses with which he had forbidden himself from the buffet table that was now being spread down beside the swimming pool.

"You can't get tight on champagne, my field mouse. You get divine."

"You've stood me up frightfully, Berry. What if I went to his home and blew out that portion of my anatomy called brain, with a mother-of-pearl pistol?"

"I'd embalm you in a block of ice and keep you in a casket of rose quartz."

"You are as slippery as a glass eel."

"You don't know the half of it, my darling, or the half of the half of it," he cried, and rolled over and dug his face into the soft fur moss of her gown. "God! I'm 16 kinds of a fool!"

"Sweet ten kinds."

"Rotten ten kinds."

"Tell me one of the kinds."

"Yes, fie, fo, fum. The kind that daren't like little white field mice."

"That daren't*" she said, and lifted her head as if to listen. "Why?"

"Left me alone," he cried into her lap, "with your whys and your whys and your whys. Why are all you girls such whyhounds?"

Strokes Her Cheek

"Sh-h-h! Berry's tight," she said, smoothing his hair.

"Just to go on doing that," he said, still into the thick whiteness of her lap. "Just go on doing that—and talk—"

"Why should I do all the talking and you all the evading?"

"Is this evading?" he said, and reached up to stroke her cheek. "Berry, Berry, what is it we want . . . ?"

"I know what I want—"

"I feel like I belonged in one of those psychological novels they're writing nowadays."

"The darling has read a book and everything."

"Where nothing happens except in the tortured brains of some tortured author's brain-children. The cross-eyed school of literature that looks inward, and does nothing about it but look and look. Life isn't that way. Life moves. Life is motion. Time doesn't pass. We pass. I may be in a mess, but I don't intent to sit in it and stew."

"Stew in my arms, darling."

"I hate you when you're tight. Am I tight, Berry?"

"Not tight, Divine."

"Let's be good, Berry, and sober, and live so that, after it's all over, it will have mattered a damn whether we have lived or not."

"You're good, Jennifer. You're a good gal. That's what ails you."

"You're no good, Berry. That's what ails you."

"You're what ails me."

Play Fair!

"Then, for God's sake, Berry play fair with me! Oh! Get up, Berry! Look! They're throwing light on the pool. It may slip up here. How long have we been away? What will Leslie say?"

A cone of light swung through the grove. He dragged her swiftly back.

"Don't go, Pussy."

"Berry, we must."

"Don't go."

"Look, the crowd is coming down to bath. There's Elsie Risdon in a bathing-suit. She never travels without it. And Ramon. He looks as if he were painted in gold leaf. It's beautiful. It's terrible. It's like one of those Stuck pictures—horrible loveliness.

"Look at the Wilke-Barre infant there in that patch of moonlight. He's going to dive. It may be Peter Pan, or it may be Tom Edgerton get those striped trunks." Bacchus gone wrong. Vine leaves in his hair, or is it confetti?

"This is one of those swimming parties of the idle and debauched rich that they read about out in Dubuque and turn Bolshevik or try to imitate. I've never seen one happen so true to form. Look, there comes ——. This is awful!"

Port of Boston

By JAMES J. DELANEY

Destined to be revolutionary in the handling of bulk cargo a new self loading, self discharging, self trimming collier came in to the Port of Boston on a test trip discharging a cargo of coal in part in lighters at quarantine and in part at Mystic Wharves to the reported astonishment of those who witnessed the experiment.

The collier, the H. F. De Bardeleben, which came in Sunday from Newport News and Sewalls Point, discharged her cargo of coal by a 230 foot beam swung from the steamer inside of which is a conveyor chain of buckets which can carry the coal right onto the docks at a rate of discharge of 200 tons an hour.

It was estimated that saving the cost of discharge the new method would save New England consumers 30 to 35 cents a ton on coal yearly.

MARITIME MEMBERS

Three new members were elected to the Maritime Association of the Boston Chamber of Commerce at the annual election of the governing board. John N. Levina, district manager of the American-Hawaiian Steamship Co., Andrew P. Lane of the Great Northern Paper Co., and Edward S. French, president of the Boston & Maine Railroad, are the new members. Garrit Fort was re-elected chairman of the governing board. Charles E. Spencer was elected vice-chairman. A special committee was appointed to study the report of the New England railroad committee and submit its report at a special meeting to be called by the chairman.

WORLD'S LARGEST

Contract for the construction of the, world's largest graving dock, costing about $9,250,000, has been placed, according to a division received in Boston from Southampton, England, near where the project will be situated, by the Southern Railway Co. are the builders. It will be ready in 1933 to accommodate the new giant 73,000-ton Cunard liner now under construction in the Clyde.

blue hat. Obviously, even in these advanced days, such a gift was out of the question unless the giver happened to be engaged to the recipient.

But something could be left to the imagination—he might send her the hat and leave her to guess the source.

The idea seemed unique—thrilling—Clive, with a shudder, bought the blue hat and had it addressed by the clerk in the Bronx to Fentriss in the Strand.

He said to himself he would give a good deal to be present when she took it out of the box.

And she would wear it the next day of course—he mustn't miss her.

He didn't—in fact he could hardly wait until she appeared walking on air, her cheeks prouder than ever—her eyes bluer than ever and the blue hat—at the blue hat—

Clive almost bumped into her—"Oh, Mr. Clive," she cried, "she walk along with me—do you see what I'm wearing? Yes, it's the blue hat I found in the big window and do you know why I'm so happy—it isn't wholly the hat—you've been nice I must tell you—there's a young man in Jermyn & Jessup who's been crazy about me—but modest—never could quite say yes—he seemed to lack—something—until."

She looked up at him with a twinkle—"that is until last night when I got home I found this hat and in it with Jermyn's compliments. of course—I'd told him I adored the hat—that my beauty is owed of him—when I wanted to give it back—I telephoned him at once—he's never seen it since! And when a man has as much tact as that—well—"

Clive saw her on the entrance at her building and said good-bye. After all silence was golden—his eyes roamed over the throngs—yes—there were other girls with blue hats.

NO CANCELLATION OF EUROPE'S WAR DEBTS!

Mr. Coolidge's Reply to Impudence of Foreign Delegates Is American People's Answer

NEVER was Calvin Coolidge more truly the spokesman of the American people than when he arraigned the outrageous impudence of certain foreign delegates to the Washington meeting of the International Chamber of Commerce, who had the affrontery to suggest that the United States remit another dollar of its foreign debt.

From his home in Northampton, Massachusetts, far removed from the political world, but by no means ignorant of the machinations of foreign politicians, Mr. Coolidge in simple and convincing language thus defined the American attitude toward any more war debt cancellation:

"Without considering at all the financial or moral obligation of foreign governments to pay their debts to our government or the obligation of our government to collect them, it is interesting to see what is involved in the argument that the debts should be canceled to increase trade. Fundamentally this means the most enormous subsidy to foreign commerce that was ever proposed . . . we should be involved in subsidizing the trade of foreign people out of money collected from our own people . . . if we adopted this principle logically we should open our treasury to all the world."

More than a timely warning to the American people was this brave statement from Mr. Coolidge—more than an ultimatum to foreign visitors on meddlesome business-bent.

Mr. Coolidge's statement was also a challenge to the administration now in power to consider "THE OBLIGATION OF OUR GOVERNMENT TO COLLECT" these war debts, and an appeal to the households of the nation to insist that their government refuse to surrender to the propaganda activities of these walking delegates from America's foreign debtors.

The plain truth is that the only mistake our government has made in dealing with these debtors was EVER TO AGREE TO REMIT ANY PART OF WHAT THEY BORROWED ON A BUSINESS BASIS FROM THE AMERICAN PEOPLE.

In the light of our experience since the war, we know now that we should have collected every dollar of our war debt. And these foreign nations, if they had appreciation for the past, any foresight for the future, any adequate sense of national self respect, should have insisted upon paying every dollar of the vast sums that they borrowed.

The money that the United States advanced to our associates in the war, and the money that we spent on our own armed forces afield and afloat to provide urgently needed aid to England, France, Italy, Belgium, and the others in their extremity was the one thing that save the allied powers from utter and overwhelming defeat.

Of all these debtor nations, France has shown herself to be the most brazen welcher of the lot. She is the most prosperous nation in all the world today because she collects her extortionate indemnity to the last sordid sou, but seeks by every discreditable evasion to avoid paying her own honest debts.

If anyone desires to observe Gallic hysteria in its most frenzied form let him suggest that France remit even one depreciated franc of Germany's debt of indemnity. The result will be not only entertaining, but illuminating.

France's attitude towards cancellation when it applies to her will be plainly and painfully obvious.

France is only willing to remit Germany's debt if we compensate her dollar for dollar for everything she so remits to Germany, which means that SHE REMITS NOTHING, but that "the United States," as usual, is asked to pay the bill.

Senator Shipstead of Minnesota rightly interpreted the final resolution adopted by the International Chamber of Commerce urging the re-examination of these foreign debts when he said:

"The meeting of the International Chamber of Commerce at Washington seems to have been more political than commercial or economic in character . . . stripped of its mask of propaganda that has been going on here for years, this talk of 'friendly cooperation consists 90 per cent of suggestions that our taxpayers should pay what foreign governments owe us, and that we make some kind of agreement in high sounding altruistic phrases, but which really means that when the next war comes we shall agree to fight on the right side in order to get peace . . . what foreign governments owe us on their debts amounts to less than ½ of 1 per cent of their national income—less than 3 per cent of their national budget, and less than 13 per cent of what they spend for armaments for war."

It ought to be obvious by this time to the most simple minded Americans that these discussions with foreign nations, however plausible their beginning, generally end in an effort on their part to unload their obligations on this country, and to make the United States, which was the one entirely innocent party in the great war, pay the whole cost of that conflict.

More Schools and Less Politics, Please

It would abolish the present School Committee of the city of Boston and substitute in its place a new committee of seven members.

Why the change?

It is unnecessary.

If the people of Boston are dissatisfied with the present members of the School Committee, they have it within their power to elect new ones.

Whether a School Committee consists of one, five, seven or 100 citizens of Boston is unimportant. The character and the ability of our school administrators are the only tests that need be applied to them. And that test can be applied by the people of Boston when the candidates for the School Committee offer themselves at the regular elections.

We have seen numerous instances the past few months of Mayor Curley, who is better informed of the needs of the city than any group of legislators possibly could be, trudging up The Hill like a mendicant with hat in hand begging for the city of Boston ordinary rights which any city in this Commonwealth ought be allowed to decide for itself.

This School Committee scheme is another example of needless political meddling into what ought to be the sovereign authority of a sovereign city.

The Legislature, Republican in majority, has other duties, less political and more important to the public welfare, to which it ought to be dedicating itself instead of attempting to impose its will upon the city of Boston because a majority of its citizens happen to be Democratic.

What we need is more schools and less politics.

The Keyes Appointment

Governor's Council Fears His "Independence"

Dr. Frederick A. Keyes of Boston has been refused confirmation more than two weeks as a member of the Board of Dental Examiners, to which he was appointed by Governor Ely.

The Governor's Council can accept without hesitation any old hack or political lameduck who is put into a fat State job at public expense.

Yet when it can get a distinguished professional man, willing to serve the people at financial loss to himself, it hems and haws, puts him under a microscope and acts for all the world as though it were conferring a fine favor upon him.

Since his graduation from the Harvard Dental School in 1908, Dr. Keyes has been the recipient of an honorary degree from Loyola University.

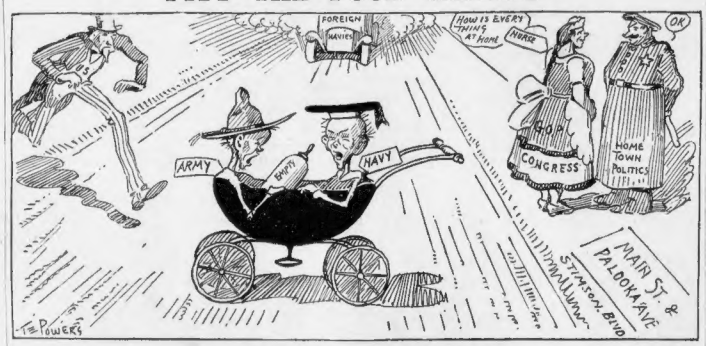
The Massachusetts Dental Society Bulletin said of him:

"Dr. Keyes' research at St. Vincent's Orphanage indicating the relationship between decayed abscessed teeth in children and the diseases of childhood was the first of its kind ever done.

"His work at the Medfield State Hospital and the Boston Sanatorium was instrumental in no small measure in directing attention to the important part bad teeth play in mental diseases and tuberculosis."

It is suggested the Governor's Council fears Dr. Keyes might not "get along" with the Board of Dental Examiners. So much the better. The people do not want a rubber-stamp up there. If the Board fears an independent member, if it has deteriorated into a clique of back-scratchers, it had better be abolished and a new Board appointed.

PITY THE POOR KIDDIES



They are stranded, as you see, right in the middle of Stimson Boulevard, not far from Main Street and Palooka Avenue. And look what is coming in the distance, "bearing down" on them, so to speak.

You see the condition of the Appropriation bottle that the two dear little babies must rely on. What's the matter with that nurse, anyhow?

* * *

Pray that the tall man on the left will awake in time and that somebody in Washington will WAKE UP some day.

New York Day by Day

Patter of Cheap Cafes

By O. O. McIntyre

NEW YORK, May 12—The picturesque patter of the cheap cafes has spread to the glorified soda fountains. Along the Bowery many waiters call out their orders through the port hole to the kitchen. The jargon varie in different sections of the country.

Soda jerking slang has the same mysterious lingo. Even at those frescoed fountains where the attendants suggest the magazine pictures of football heroes in mufti it is indulged. They do not shout so loud but it may easily be heard by the customer.

* * *

Hot chocolate—snow shoe.
Lemonade—31.
Orangeade—41.
Small coca cola—shoot one.
Large coca cola—stretch one.
Malted milk—burn one. (Derived from electricity used in mixing.)
Plain sundae—plain.
Lemon phosphate—spiker.
Soda to take out—a runner.
Chocolate and vanilla sundae—mystery.
Pineapple sundae—a Chicago.

Incidentally, the soda mixer is not only highly paid if an expert—in a few cases $55 a week—but he has a contact with the public that leads to better things. Two employed at Fifth ave. fountains recently were picked for jobs that paid around $10,000 a year each.

* * *

I somehow hope Alfonso will regain the Spanish throne. Just a year ago in the companionway of the Europa, anchored at Southampton, he gave my dog Billy a passing pat. Right then I became a royalist.

And there is the metaphorical cross strain in a foreign dispatch to a morning paper: "Of course it is fully realized a good case against the Premier cannot be made out, so every little pin prick must be fed and watered."

Fake Heiress Skips; Gigolo Stung.

In Paris, gigolos, resenting the stigma attached to their calling, have unionized. They say respectable members of their guild are mostly students who pick up extra money dancing with ladies for pay. And nothing more.

* * *

There is indeed a faint respectability about professional Paris gigolos in select places. They only dance attendance upon foolish ladies when requested. And are mostly automatons who talk only when talked to.

* * *

Ben Holzman dropped into a neighborhood movie the other afternoon. It was in total darkness and he groped his way down center and took an aisle seat only to plop into a lady's lap. He excused himself and sought another seat. A few minutes later lights came on and he and the lady were the only two people in the entire house.

* * *

Among callers this week was a gentleman from South Africa who has perfected a diamond washing machine. While I refrained from expressing myself, it occure to me that this is by the way of being somewhat an off season for diamond washing. As a matter of fact—and it just popped into my head like that—most diamonds are already in soak.

* * *

Nearly all my friends are backgammon enthusiasts. But so far I have expressed the same diffidence toward it as to golf. Today someone sent a new set and after trying to play it with Harry, the colored butler, we threw everything away but the dice and got down on the floor. And did we shoot backgammon!

Listen, World! :: ProudWay

By ELSIE ROBINSON

Die—and Live—With Boots On!

STRONG, RECKLESS men had but one desire when I was a youngster on the western frontier. They wished to "die with their boots on."

Elsie Robinson

Once, sneaking under the swinging half door of Keenan's Golden Rule Saloon and peering between the elbows of a milling crowd, I saw a local hero whose wish had been granted. He lay sprawled upon the floor—a great, hairy mountain of a man, his flaming beard still flecked from his last schooner of beer. Others were discussing the nicety of the shot that had laid him low, but my interest centered in his shoes. I had never been able to understand that craving to "die with my boots on." What was there about boots— these, for instance? Dusty, shabby, knee high affairs, scarred and stained by a hundred trails, scuffed at the toe and worn at the heel—why had he wanted to die in those?

It was many a year before I found the answer . . . but I came at last to see that only those who die with their boots on have really lived. To have lived with his boots on—that was the great point to the red-headed man. Death was only an incident.

He had always gone shod for adventure.

He had chosen to go shod like that. Chosen boots instead of bedroom slippers or dancing pumps or neat, standardized busines shoes. And he had chosen the things that go with adventure—loneliness and danger, discomfort and hardship. For there was something in him that despised safety and dreaded comfort. Above all, he had chosen independence and action. He wanted to live while the living was good—to live constantly, every minute of the time, right up to the last thud—He wanted to live, inside and out—to think his own thoughts, make his own decisions, run his own risks, take his own blame.

Perhaps some of his thoughts and decisions were far from admirable. He was, I guess, a pretty bad man, as we judge those things. But he'd—lived. And he wouldn't wake up on the other side and cry: "Why didn't I take a chance"? And then cuss in his beard because he hadn't.

He had died—and he had lived —with his boots on. And the dust and the scars on those battered boots were, to him, marks of honorable venture. He'd have hated to have gone out, with the bedclothes tucked neatly under his chin and his feet on a hot-water bag.

Perhaps you condemn him, but many others have chosen to die—and to live—like that. They were not always to be found in mining camps. Some, through force of circumstance, spent all their days at quiet jobs in the humdrum streets . . . some sat in the difficult seats of the mighty. BUT THEY ALL LIVED AND DIED WITH THEIR BOOTS ON.

It wasn't easy. People called them fools—and they could have had a much softer and more profitable time if they had been willing to compromise and alibi and evade, like more cautious folk. But they refused. They sent their souls out upon strange trails. They braved the danger and the dust. They were ready, always, to shoot it out with life on any issue. And they died, in the thick of things, with their traveling boots still on.

Which seems to me a proud, free way to do.

The Marry-Go-Round

By HELEN ROWLAND

Love Famine

IF THERE is a love-famine in larger cities of this fair land, as has been asserted, it is only what I have been predicting (with tears in my eyes) for several years.

Many superficial reasons have been offered for the present dearth of romance and Romeos. Hard times, lack of privacy in modern apartments, the difficulties of meeting the "right people" in big towns. All of which is bosh and nonsense and hooey!

The real reason for the love-depression is a psychological one, far deeper than any of these. And its middle class name is prodigality, satiety—TOO MUCH WOMEN!

When a man has had enough of anything—food or drink or love—he doesn't want any MORE. That's natural. Too much emphasis on sex-appeal, too much dalliance along the rose-colored way, too much free and easy love-making—these have deadened the average man's senses and sent his imagination into a coma.

Too much frank camaraderie with women has killed his sensitivity. The love-feast spread out for his eternal delectation has robbed him of his appetite and given him emotional indigestion.

Woman, whom Michlet once called "the Sunday of man," has become just as commonplace as the Monday morning wash-line! When will women WAKE UP and learn that all the physical beauty in the world will not stir a man's imagination when it is spread before his eyes as frankly as the Monday's wash?
